Eight Heavy Planks, Loosened While Being Hoisted at New Building, Crash Through Roof of Washington Avenue Restaurant Just Before Lunch Hour.

GIRL CASHIER HAS A NARROW ESCAPE

Excitement Caused in Neighborhood by Report of Building's Collapse—Men Who Were Drawing Up Planks Are "Sleepy" and Lazy.

Eight heavy planks, each 18 feet long, 2 inches thick and 10 inches wide, fell from a hoisting apparatus at the seventh floor of the new Rosenthal-Sloan Building at noon Wednesday, and crashed through the roof of John B. Melton's one-story restaurant, 1722 Washington avenue.

William Maloney, a waiter, was pinioned by one of the planks, which broke the floor of the restaurant after striking him on the head. He was removed from beneath the heavy strip of lumber, unconscious, and was sent to the city hospital. His condition is critical.

Bessie Banks, the cashier, had stepped to her desk a few seconds before the crash from a place where, had she remained, the falling timber must have struck her. Minnie Dacus, a waitress, was filling a glass with milk near where Maloney stood, and plaster fell about her, but she was unhurt.

Customers Escape.

Others in the place at the time were Melton, the proprietor, and a half dozen young men who were sitting at the lunch counter eating. Plaster was scattered on them, but none of them was injured. Maloney was carrying an order to one of the young men when he was struck by the plank.

Five minutes later the tables would have been filled with lunchers from the nearby business houses, and a number of fatalities would have been inevitable.

The restaurant was wrecked, and great excitement was caused in the neighborhood. Reports spread that a building had collapsed.

The planks were being hoisted by a rope tied about their middle. This is a device which works well, so long as nothing destroys the balance of the planks. In this case, something caused the load to tilt and one of the planks slipped out and was followed instantly by the rest.

The two men who were doing the hoisting on the seventh floor quit work for lunch a moment after the accident. When inquiry was made as to their names their fellow workmen said that they were known only by the nicknames of "Lazy" and "Sleepy."

DEATH NOTICE WINS WIFE A DIVORCE

In It Her Husband Called Another Woman His "Beloved Wife."

A divorce was granted to Mrs. Mabel V. Brown by Judge Homer in the Circuit Court Wednesday, when she produced newspaper clippings to show that her husband, J. Bert Brown, a musician, had acknowledged another woman as his wife.

The clippings were notices of the death of Ola Vollrath Brown, described as the "beloved wife of J. Bert Brown."

Mrs. Brown testified that her husband deserted her for Olga Vollrath, daughter of Charles and Augusta Vollrath.

Though Brown filed the original suit for divorce, he was not in court to combat his wife's cross bill. The court awarded Mrs. Brown $15 a month alimony to support her and her 9-year-old daughter, Grace.

LAUNCH OVERTURNS, PASSENGERS DRENCHED

Women and Children Rescued From Meramec River Near Fern Ridge.

Twenty-one persons, mostly women and children, got a ducking during their holiday celebration at Valley Park, when the launch Fern Ridge, plying between Valley Park and Fern Ridge, turned turtle at Arnold's Landing.

The boat was turning in midstream when it capsized. The Meramec River there is shallow, and with the aid of men in the party, the women and children climbed on the bottom of the craft or clung to its side, until they were taken to the shore in launches.

The occasion was the outing of employes of the St. Louis County Gas Co., which was attended by about 1500 persons.

LUMBER TRUST MEN IN A FAKE PRISON

Cheered as Clothed in Stripes and in Cell They Ride in Parade.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., July 5.—Charles P. Chase and Newton Bagg, both of whom are named in the suit recently brought by the Government against the alleged Lumber Trust easily carried off the honors in the Fourth of July parade here.

The two men, wearing regulation prison uniforms and with their hair closely clipped, rode in a steel prison cell, barred and bolted, resting on a float, which was drawn by four horses. The float bore this inscription:

"Local members of the alleged Lumber Trust getting free board."

Chase and Bagg sat on wooden stools. With perspiration rolling down their faces, they acknowledged by gestures with palm leaf fans the continuous roar of applause that followed the passage of the float through the crowded streets.

Chase, who is president of the Springfield Board of Trade and also president of the largest lumber corporation in Springfield, was for seven years president of the Massachusetts Retail Dealers' Association, which is one of the defendants in Attorney-General Wickersham's suit.

Bagg, as secretary of the Massachusetts Dealers' Association, is named in the bill of complaint.

COLLIE FEEDS ITS IMPRISONED MATE

Animal Which Fell Into Prospect Hole Found Fat, Five Weeks Later.

SEATTLE, Wash., July 5.—Led into the forests of San Juan Island by his collie, Thomas Jones, a ranchman, rescued from an abandoned prospect hole a dog which he had searched for more than a month.

Although the dog had been imprisoned and forced to stand in two inches of water for five weeks he was fat and healthy when the owner pulled him out of the 15-foot hole. The dog had been fed by its collie brother.

After the first collie disappeared Jones observed that the remaining dog developed what the rancher mistook for a ravenous appetite, consuming almost as much as the two had eaten. One day, as Jones tossed the collie a two-pound bone from which none of the meat had been cut, he noticed that instead of devouring the meat the collie took it and trotted off towards the woods.

When Jones procured a ladder and descended into the hole he found a pile of bones by the side of the dog at the bottom of the hole. They had been carried to the imprisoned animal by his brother.

LICENSE REFUSED FOR CRITIC OF CLAYTON

Marriage Applicant Accused of Saying He Could Buy Officials for $1.

John O'Donald of 3967 St. Ferdinand avenue and Grace Neary of the same address went to the office of Marriage License Clerk Henry Ahlers at Clayton Tuesday. They were old enough to legally marry and gave satisfactory answers to all questions. After Ahlers had made out the license, O'Donald asked that it be kept off of the public records.

Ahlers says that when he told O'Donald this would be impossible, O'Donald replied:

"Of course you can keep it secret. I can buy any official in Clayton with a dollar and a glass of beer."

Indignant at the imputation, Ahlers tore up the license and ordered O'Donald from his office.

Prisoner Takes Part of Man Hugging a Girl and Is Arrested as "a Butter In."

It is all right for a man to be a peacemaker, according to Judge Kimmel of the Clark Avenue Police Court, but he should not "but in" to do it. It appeared to the Judge that Edwin H. Belcher butted in when he tried to mediate between a Forest Park Highlands watchman and a beer drummer who was hugging a girl and he fined Belcher $10 for disturbing the peace and $10 for resisting an officer.

Belcher was at a table and the drummer and the girl were at another table. The drummer was hugging the girl. The watchman, John Keeton, told the drummer to quit. The drummer insisted he had a right to hug the girl.

Belcher agreed with the drummer and went to his assistance. The arrest followed.

SEATTLE, Wash., July 5.—Prof. Herschell Parker of New York, noted for his efforts to climb Mount McKinley and for his exposure of Dr. Frederick Cook, sailed for Valdez today on the steamer Admiral Sampson. While in Alaska he will make arrangements for an expedition to ascend Mount McKinley next February.

COUNTY HOME IS FIRED BY ROCKET AND DESTROYED

Residence of Dr. H. B. Erdhaus Burns After Flaming Brand Falls on Stable Roof.

BRIDE GIVES THE ALARM

Merrymakers at Near-By Resort Watch Great Blaze That Dims Fireworks.

A spectacular fire which destroyed Dr. H. B. Erdhaus' St. Louis County dwelling and barn Tuesday night afforded a holiday show for celebrators at Campbell's Forest Home, a roadhouse 150 feet away.

The physician kept a supply of drugs on the second floor, and when the flames were at their height there was a series of sharp explosions, the heat setting off those of the decoctions which were inflammable. This added to the interest of the spectacle, and the merrymakers voted it better than the fireworks which Campbell had supplied for them.

It was a blazing skyrocket sent up from the resort which set the stable afire. A load of hay had just been put into it, and it sprang almost instantly into flame.

"See the fire!" a woman at one of the tables cried.

It was a busy night at Campbell's, and nearly every table was taken. At the cry others who had been drinking in the bar and in private supper rooms went out onto the verandah. Waiters went among them, serving drinks, while the conflagration went on.

The spectators watched the fire rise to its crest, until the verandah was almost as light as day, and then run along a fence to the dwelling, which afforded a sight even more brilliant.

Neighbors who gathered could do nothing toward breaking the flames, and fire engines were summoned from St. Louis. Neighbors said Wednesday that the firemen wanted to pump water from a pond on Campbell's ground, but that he would not permit them. They lost 20 minutes arguing with him, then ran a line of hose from West End Heights, 200 yards away. It was then too late to save the dwelling. The total loss was estimated at $8000.

Mrs. Erdhaus gave the alarm when the barn caught fire, then ran to it and saved three chickens. The heat drove her back, and she was unable to liberate a horse, valued at $300, which was within. A carriage also was destroyed.

Neighbors poking about in the ruins 12 hours later pushed the charred top off the refrigerator and found a 25-pound cake of ice within. It seemed the only thing about the place which had escaped the flames.

Dr. Erdhaus was making professional calls when the fire broke out, and did not return until after it was over. He has been living there five months, and recently improved his home.

While Dr. E. C. Chappell and his family were absent Tuesday night a paper balloon set fire to an awning on their residence at 5369 Cabanne avenue. The lace curtains and window frame were burned, the damage being estimated at $75.

ARTERY BURSTS IN A SHOPPER'S LEG

East St. Louis Woman Collapses at Counter—Condition Serious Because of Heat.

Mrs. Louise Stibler, 33 years old, wife of Caesar Stibler, 545 North Twenty-third street, East St. Louis, became unconscious from the bursting of an artery in her left leg as she was shopping in Penny & Gentles' store Wednesday morning.

Policeman Golbor was called in and had her sent to the City Hospital. Her condition was aggravated by the heat and the report from the City Hospital at noon was that her recovery was very improbable.

Mrs. Stibler left her home at 9 a. m. to come to St. Louis and buy a suit for her 3-year-old son, Alfred. Her husband was notified by telephone of her condition and hurried to the hospital.

QUEEN DOWAGER OF PORTUGAL IS DEAD

Maria Pia, in Exile Passes Away at an Italian Chateau.

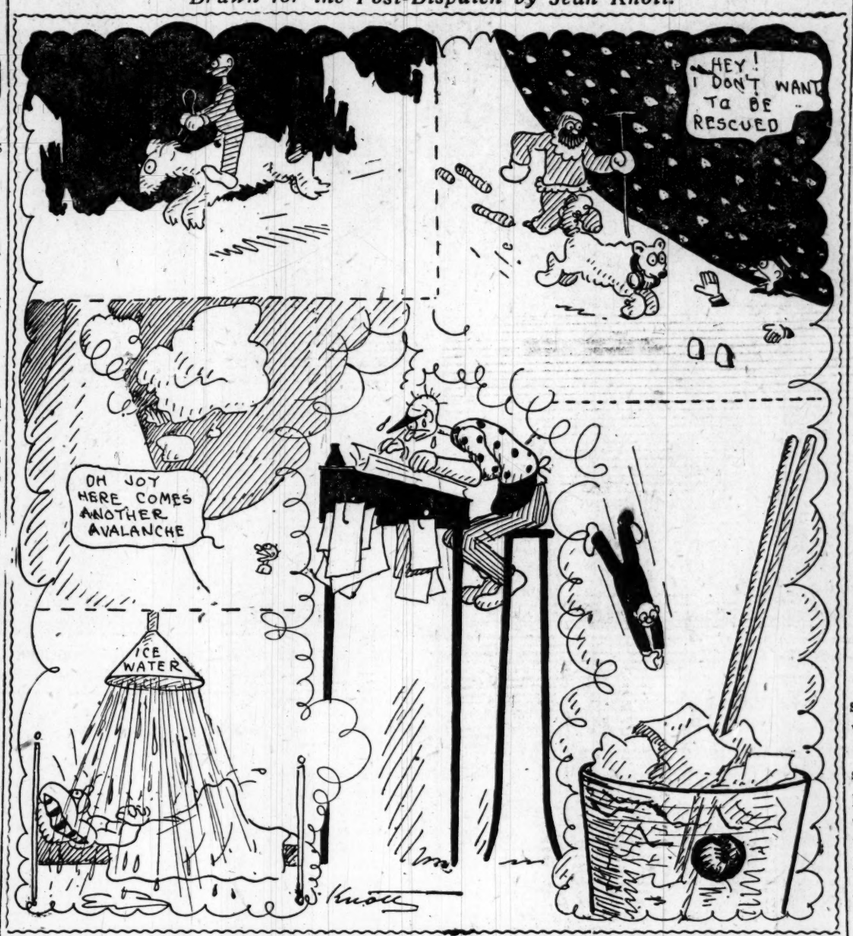

TURIN, Italy, July 5.—Maria Pia, Queen Dowager of Portugal, died at the Royal Chateau at Stupinigi at 3.15 o'clock this afternoon.

Recently she had been living in Italy with her sister, Princess Clotilde, widow of Prince Napoleon. The death of the Princess several days ago left the sister prostrated and she had been reported as seriously ill.

The Queen Dowager passed through many misfortunes. Her brother, King Humbert of Italy; her son, King Carlos, and her grandson, the Portuguese Crown Prince, were assassinated, and her other grandson, King Manuel, was deposed from the Portuguese throne.

FOUND--A COOL PLACE NEAR CITY; MILE UP IN AIR

Lahm and Hart, in a Balloon, Discover Temperature of 75 Degrees Above St. Louis.

Lieut. Frank P. Lahm of the United States Signal Corps and John P. Hart, lieutenant of the Signal Corps of the National Guard of Missouri, found a variety of cool spots in the hours between 5:30 p. m. and 8:30 p. m. Tuesday when St. Louis was sweltering in a temperature that ranged from 100 to 96. Lahm and Hart were resting in a temperature that they estimate at an average of 75 degrees, while for a time they watched a wind and rainstorm playing over their heads.

Lieutenants Lahm and Hart were up in a balloon from 5:35 p. m. to 8:25 p. m. They didn't get much further away than Granite City, but say they found it cool all the way from 350 to 5900 feet up in the air.

110 at Starting Place.

"They told us when we were starting," said Lieut. Lahm to a Post-Dispatch reporter Wednesday, "that the temperature in the Rutger street gas yards, from which we sailed, was 110 degrees.

"It surely was hot when we started, but we got away easily over the river and in a few minutes were at a height of 350 feet. It got cooler suddenly up there and we were quite comfortable. In 30 minutes we were 1100 feet in the air.

"We were moving slowly toward Caseyville, Ill., but we saw a storm coming from the east and let the balloon work itself back down to 350 feet. We wanted to get under the storm. The wind caught us, though, and at 8 o'clock had sucked us up to 2200 feet. Fifteen minutes later we were 5900 feet in the air. But the storm was still over us and passed so quickly that we did not get wet.

"The wind left us over Horseshoe Lake and apparently drifting back to St. Louis. It was easy to get back down, as the wind had taken us up far above the natural altitude for the balloon. When we got down to 700 feet we had drifted across the surface of the lake and landed easily on the Edwardsville road a mile and a half east of East Granite City.

"Of course, we didn't have any breeze, even when we were in the storm, but the air was really cool, particularly after the rain passed over. We had an average tempefature of about 75 degrees.

Sun Makes Gas Expand.

"The only disagreeable feature was the gas escaping from the appendix. While the sun was up it caused the gas to expand greatly and the odor was disagreeable, but it never got nauseating."

Lieut. Lahm leaves St. Louis for Kansas City Wednesday night. With his aid, Lieut. Hart, he will represent St. Louis in the balloon St. Louis No. 4, in the national race from Kansas City July 10. This race is a preliminary for the next international balloon race.

The balloon in which the Tuesday evening trip was made is the Missouri, of only 40,000 cubic feet capacity. The international racers run to 90,000.

HUSBAND STAYS AND WOOES WIFE WHO GOT DIVORCE

She Shakes Separation Decree at Him, He Drops to Floor and Proposes Marriage.

Mrs. Margaret A. Schuermann of the St. Charles Rock road has a divorce, but she also has the husband from whom she is divorced and she doesn't know what to do with him. She went to Clayton Tuesday to see her attorney, L. G. Peery, about it, but there was nothing that he could do for her.

Harry G. Schuermann, the husband, pleads love and the law as his justification for staying. In the first place, he still loves his wife, never did want to be separated from her and has asked her to marry him again. In the second place, his lawyer, State Senator Rollins, has advised him that he has as much right to stay on the farm as Mrs. Schuermann has. And for these two reasons he proposes to remain.

Mrs. Schuermann obtained a decree from Judge Wurdeman Monday. When she went home and told Schuermann about it, he was all broken up. She says he fell down on his hands and knees and wept and pleaded with her to marry him again, offering to get her an automobile and a diamond ring if she would, but she told him it was awfully sudden and she was too glad to be free to entertain his proposal.

Suggests He Clear Out.

She suggested that, inasmuch as he was not her husband any more, it would be a good idea for him to clear out, but he said he was going to stay right there.

When she went to Clayton Tuesday, looking for her attorney, she said she would be glad to go away if it were not for the seven children. They range in age from 3 to 17 years, and she does not like to leave them. She told her husband, though, she said, that she would go away if he would get somebody to take care of the children.

Partition Suit Hope.

The only hope for a real separation lies, her attorney told her, in the partition suits that have been filed, one by Mrs. Schuermann and one by Schuermann. She filed hers as soon as the decree was granted, and he filed one as soon as he knew about the decree being granted. One is in Judge Wurdeman's court and the other in Judge McElhinney's court. The couple have property worth $30,000, consisting of a 15-acre farm on the St. Charles road and improved property in Wellston.

Schuermann sued his wife in April for divorce, but said at the time he did not want a divorce and was only suing to keep her from getting all the property in her name. He alleged that she smoked cigars, chewed coffee beans, carried two revolvers in a belt, made him do his own washing, threw his clothing out of the window and threatened to kill him.

Mrs. Schuermann filed a cross bill in which she alleged that he allowed his mother, Mrs. Sophie Schuermann, to beat her in his presence, at different times.

MRS. VANDERBILT CHARMS BY BUNNY CUDDLE DANCE

She and C. H. Duell Jr. Do Steps to "Teddy Bear" Till Steamer's Orchestra Tires.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, July 5.—The American today prints the following cablegram from London:

Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt Jr. arrived at Plymouth yesterday under her recently assumed name—Mrs. Vincent—and sailed on to Cherbourg to join Mrs. Hermann Oelrichs, her sister, in Paris.

Mrs. Vanderbilt treated the Olympic's passengers to a brilliant display of dancing in the ship's ballroom with C. H. Duell Jr., a son of former Judge Duell, who is a cousin of Elihu Root.

On the last night of the voyage a Fourth of July ball was given for the distinguished women passengers, including Mrs. Stuyvesant Fish, Mrs. Henry S. Redmond, Mrs. William Jay, Mrs. Hamilton McK. Twombley and Mrs. James Speyer.

Mrs. Fish, who is in mourning, did not enter the room, but like a schoolgirl, peered through the porthole and watched the proceedings.

Mrs. Vanderbilt, attired in purple satin combined with black, made a stunning appearance and danced constantly with young Duell. Suddenly the orchestra played "Teddy Bear." Presently the floor was cleared and Mrs. Vanderbilt and Duell executed the "Pas Seul," a modified Apache dance, which Mrs. Fish christened "The Duell Bunny Cuddle."

After the dance had been sustained until the musicians wearied, the lights in the room were suddenly extinguished and the passengers chanted ragtime as the pair danced alone in the darkened room.

Duell was booked to disembark in England, while Mrs. Vanderbilt was booked to France. During the reluctant good-bys the ship's lighter lost five minutes while the passengers fumed and Duell considered altering his plans and continuing to France. Finally Duell went ashore amid the cheers of the remaining passengers, who enjoyed his youthful and obvious enthusiasm for Mrs. Vanderbilt.

FORECASTER HINTS AT "SHOWERS AND COOLER" TOMORROW

Heat, However, Continues Today With the Mercury Registering 98 Degrees at Noon.

WASHINGTON LOOKS FOR A DROP IN TEMPERATURE

Eureau Expects Warm Wave in the Mississippi Valley Will Be Somewhat Dissipated Within Next 36 or 48 Hours.

Official forecast: Fair and warm tonight; for Thursday, a slight probability of local thunderstorms and somewhat cooler weather.

Forecaster Hayes' manner was hopeful Wednesday when he scanned the maps and charts on which he based his conservative prediction of cooler weather for St. Louis. The "slight probability" clause in his forecast meant that cooler weather was in sight, but that there was a chance that it might not arrive in the next 24 hours.

St. Louis was better off than some other cities. Along the Atlantic Coast the heat was even more intense, but breezes gave some relief.

With a temperature of 90 degrees at 9 a. m., the same as that recorded 24 hours earlier, Wednesday seemed likely to duplicate the heat record of Tuesday, which was the hottest Fourth of July St. Louis has seen in the 72 years in which records have been kept.

Tuesday's record of 101 degrees at 2:30 p. m. was also the record for 1911, and marked the culmination of the severest spell of heat that St. Louis has experienced since 1901.

Several heat prostrations were reported Wednesday.

John Birsch of 5709 Roosevelt place, a salesman, was prostrated at Fourteenth and Angelrodt streets. He was taken home.

Arthur Brill, 45 years old, bartender at 423 South Second street, was taken to the city hospital.

Mrs. Leona Yeaman, 27 years old, who lives at the Park Hotel, became unconscious at Fourteenth street and Washington avenue. She was taken home in a taxicab.

Thomas Keegan, 35 years old, a track walker for the United Railways Co., was overcome at Easton and Euclid avenues. He was taken home in an ambulance.

Sam Sellenberg, 35 years old, 803 Carr street, was overcome at his home and taken to the city hospital.

James Boyle, 58 years old, 3229 Pine street, was overcome in the restaurant where he is employed, at 3422 Olive street. He was taken to the city hospital.

BREEZES BRING RELIEF IN EAST

Washington Thinks Cooler Weather Will Come Within Next 48 Hours.

WASHINGTON, July 5.—Refreshing westerly breezes sweeping along the Atlantic Coast today brought some relief from the hot wave to the eastern section of the country, though the Government weather experts say there is no appreciable change in registered temperatures. Cooler weather tomorrow is promised for Chicago and the Middle West region, where today was started with the mercury even higher than it was at the same time yesterday.

Breaks in the torrid spell are being reported, the extreme Northwest having a change to considerably cooler weather with temperatures dropping below the seasonable average. The Weather Bureau predicts that the change to cooler weather will spread over the middle and north plains states and the upper Mississippi Valley within the next 36 to 48 hours, bringing material and much-needed relief.

ST. LOUIS RECORDS 7 DEAD BY HEAT

Seven deaths in St. Louis and one in East St. Louis Tuesday were ascribed to the heat, while there were many prostrations.

The deaths were those of:

ADOLPH NUELLE, 1722 Dolman, city hospital.

CHRIS STAEHLIN, 715 South Broadway, city hospital.

HENRY WESLER, 2914 Missouri, city hospital.

RICHARD FOERSTEL, age 3 months, 2409 North Vandeventer, found dead in bed.

JOHN BROSIUS, 2529 South Broadway, found dead in bed.

ALEX VEECH, section foreman for Wiggins Ferry Co., East St. Louis, died at St. Mary's Hospital.

UNIDENTIFIED MAN, found in shed at 5536 Manchester, died city hospital.

UNIDENTIFIED MAN, fell at Tenth and North Market; died city hospital.

Prostrations occurred in all parts of the city, but restorative treatment by physicians proved sufficient in most cases.

Some of those taken to the city hospital in a more serious condition were James Nelson of 2819 Sheridan avenue, Herman Poelstein of 4440 Easton avenue, James Reed of 1183 South Second street, James Wilson of 1921 Franklin avenue and a man named Gallagher.

An unidentified man went to the city dispensary at 11:30 a. m. Wednesday and took a seat to wait his turn for treatment. Ten minutes later he became delirious and fell to the floor. The physicians said he was overcome by the heat. At the city hospital a card was found in the man's pockets with the name Charles Harder 302 Convent street. His condition is serious.

You May Sleep in the Public Parks With the Gates Open if You Wish.

PARK COMMISSIONER DAVIS announced Wednesday that, owing to the heat, any person who wished might sleep in any public park.

There is no ordinance prohibiting sleeping in park, but the police as a rule forbid it. Davis let Chief of Police Young know that the unwritten rule was suspended for the present.

In Forest, O'Fallon, Tower Grove and Fairground parks there are many acres of coolness. Those who wish to take pillows and blankets along will not be molested, provided they remain out of sight of the driveways.

"What's up now?" asked the druggist.

"Didn't you read about that marvelous new microscope a German scientist has invented?"

"No. What about it?"

"Why, it is so powerful that you can see a nickel's worth of ice with it."

"You shouldn't believe everything you read."

"Then you don't believe it?"

"I should say not. There are some things science can't do. They'll never make a lens strong enough to show less than a quarter's worth of ice."

10 AVIATORS FLY FROM LONDON FOR CLIFFS OF FRANCE

Contestants in Circuit Race Are Making Return Trip Over English Channel.

VEDRINE FIRST AT DOVER

Picks Up $1000 Prize—Vidart Next and Five Others Follow to Channel Port.

DOVER, England, July 5.—Ten of the flock of 36 aviators originally entered in the international circuit aviation race, survive and today began the return journey from London to Paris.

The eighth stage called for a flight from the Hendon Park Aerodrome, near London, across the English channel to Calais, France, by the same route that the aviators took in approaching the British capital.

The airmen got away from Hendon at 6 o'clock this morning and after a brief stop at Shoreham continued to this city.

Vedrine was the first to arrive and picked up the special prize of $1000 for the fastest time between Hendon and Shoreham. Vidart came next, and Beaumont, Gibert, Garros, Tabuteau and Barra followed in order.

Valentine, the Englishman, descended at Brooklands and Kimmerling came down at Romney Marsh, near Rye.

Renaux, with his passenger, landed 10 miles west of Dover, trouble with his engine having developed. The airmen will continue their flight tomorrow with a passage of the English Channel.

ATWOOD FLEW AT A 50-MILE RATE

For 5 Hours He Kept It Up, Covering 250 to Make 100 Miles—Winds Adverse.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., July 5.—Harry N. Atwood of Boston, the newest sensation in aero ranks, was the popular idol of Atlantic City's half-million Fourth of July population on his arrival here. His daring five-hour flight from Governor's Island to Atlantic City ended on the beach in front of the Marlborough-Blenheim at 2:30 o'clock in the afternoon in the midst of a cheering throng.

The second leg of his air trip to Washington will start this morning, his route and time of starting depending on the weather conditions.

Atwood was forced to descend three times during his flight to take on gasoline, first at Asbury Park, later at Tuckerton and again at Venice Park. His first supply of 15 gallons was exhausted by his constant battle with a near-gale, which impeded his progress and caused him to fly 250 air miles to cover a course of about a hundred miles on land.

So fatiguing was the trip, Atwood decided to change his plans and rest until this morning. The young aviator created frenzied enthusiasm as he swung over the top of the tall hotels fronting on the board walk at Ohio avenue and shot high in the air over the ocean. He circled up the beach, dipping and cutting figure eights in sight of the thousands who had waited patiently for hours to glimpse his daring flight darting a half mile to sea, following the length of the ocean pier, then stood started to descend. He volplaned to the soft sand at foot of Ohio avenue, landing in a small space roped off from the crowd. Police reserves were necessary to keep back the cheering thousands who gathered from every section of the city with the news of his arrival.

HUGH A. ROBINSON FLIES AT CAIRO

St. Louis Aviator Goes Over the Illinois Town in Two Trips.

CAIRO, Ill., July 5.—Aviator Hugh A. Robinson of St. Louis made two flights here in a Curtiss biplane as part of the July 4 celebration. In the first he circled over the city and then darted off in a wider circle, which took him over the borders of Illinois, Missouri and Kentucky. The course was 26 miles and the time for the flight was 22 minutes.

On his return to Cairo he flew for several miles along the Ohio River and dipped under the central span of the Illinois Central Railroad bridge.

His second flight covered 15 miles, and at one time he attained a height of 3000 feet.

Atwood Will Resume Flight Toward Washington Saturday.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., July 5.—The Atlantic City Aero Club has persuaded Aviator Atwood to tarry here a few days, to give exhibition flights along the beach, so he will not continue his flight to Washington until Friday or Saturday.

The sweltering hot weather now breaking all "heated term" records in St. Louis has compelled a pitiful life-and-death struggle for the little babies of the city's congested districts.

The St. Louis Pure Milk Commission, which stands on the firing-line, so to speak, of the great and all-necessary battle to save these tenement tots from dying for lack of the pure milk which alone can bring them safely through this deadly period, is the first to feel and realize the menace of the impending "slaughter of the innocents."

The commission is now overwhelmed with increased demands for pure milk with which to hold the spark of life in the frail bodies of these tenement babies.

Under this imperative increased demand Secretary Herbert E. Mortland of the Pure Milk Commission reports that 16,000 more "feedings" of pure milk have been distributed within the past 20 days than during the corresponding period last year.

The greater proportion of these 16,000 increased "feedings"—a "feeding" is one bottle of pure milk—has been suddenly necessitated by the appallingly high temperature of the past few days, culminating in the withering heat of Monday and yesterday.

Every pure milk station in St. Louis is now crowded with mothers and their babies, or mothers without babies in cases where the little ones are too weak or ill to be brought in their mothers' arms, at the daily morning clinics for the treatment of ill-nourished babies and the distribution of the various modifications of milk required in individual instances.

Physicians and nurses alike are being worked to the limit of their powers of endurance.

Because of the vast volume of this increased demand for pure milk in behalf of the little children of the poor, there have been four new Pure Milk stations added to those already established.

New Pure Milk Stations Established.

The first of these new stations is located at the Alexian Brothers' Hospital, 3955 South Broadway.

The second, known as City Dispensary Branch No. 4, is at Vandeventer and Chouteau avenues.

The third, known as the Third City Branch, is at Third and Barry streets.

The fourth is at the House of the Guardian Angels, 1029 Marion street.

And now, for the benefit of such mothers as do not already know their location, the list of the older pure milk stations is here reprinted:

Niedringhaus Mission, Seventh and Cass.

United Jewish Charities, Ninth and Carr.

Self-Culture Hall, 1832 Carr.

Kingdom House Mission, 1033 South Eighth.

Central Mission, 816 North Eleventh.

North End Dispensary, 3618 North Broadway.

Missouri Lodge, No. 22, 1601 Carr.

Riverside Mission, 406 South Second.

Markham Memorial Church, Menard and Julia.

Children's Hospital, 400 South Jefferson.

Holy Cross House, 2601 North Eleventh.

Ebn Ezra Lodge, Jefferson and Carr. Laboratory, 1726 North Thirteenth.

Victor Street Mission, Third and Victor.

It is imperatively necessary that every mother in the city's tenement districts shall have opportunity to see this list and thus learn the location of the nearest pure milk station to which she may apply for the pure milk that alone will save her baby's life during the heated term.

Pure Milk Fund in Action.

For you may rest assured that the increased demand for pure milk will continue to be met by the St. Louis Pure Milk Commission through the timely financial assistance extended by the Post-Dispatch Pure Milk and Free Ice Fund.

When Secretary Mortland of the commission was called up on the phone by a Post-Dispatch representative yesterday and asked for a report on the situation created by the sudden deadly rise of temperature, he gave the figures already mentioned, adding that the increase of 16,000 "feedings" was an increase of 36 per cent over last year—and then he said:

"We are in immediate need of something over $540 to pay our increased milk bill."

And Mr. Mortland was instructed at once to send the bills to the Post-Dispatch in order that a check might be forwarded him without delay. This check will be sent to Mr. Mortland today.

So, too, in the case of the distribution of free ice, this great work being under the direction of the Free Ice and Sick Diet Circle of the King's Daughters, the entire cost of the ice and its distribution being paid from the Post-Dispatch Pure Milk and Free Ice Fund.

On Monday a check for $443.42 was sent by the Post-Dispatch to the King's Daughters to pay their June bills for free ice and its distribution, these bills having been duly submitted to the Post-Dispatch by Mrs. Marion R. Brokaw, leader of the circle in charge of this work.

"They show a heavy increase over our bills for the same period last year," said Mrs. Brokaw. "But this is inevitable, if we are to meet the increased demand for free ice needed by the tenement babies and the destitute poor and sick of the city's crowded districts. Shall we continue to meet this increased demand, or shall we limit the extent of the distribution of free ice?"

Mrs. Brokaw was promptly told to set no limit to the distribution of free ice at the present time. Precisely as in the case of the distribution of pure milk by the St. Louis Pure Milk Commission, the need for free ice in the tenement districts is a life-and-death need.

It must be met if the tenement babies and the destitute sick are to be brought alive through the prevailing deadly heat of the most trying summer St. Louis has ever known.

These are the plain facts of the existing situation.

The Post-Dispatch Pure Milk and Free Ice Fund, to which both the St. Louis Pure Milk Commission, in its task of supplying pure milk to the tenement babies, and the King's Daughters, in their task of supplying free ice to the tenement babies and the destitute poor and sick, alike look for the financial support necessary to their task's full performance, is established and maintained through the generous helpfulness of the Post-Dispatch's readers.

To these readers the Post-Dispatch now makes a renewed appeal.

Keep plainly in mind the fact that this sudden greatly increased demand for the life-saving distribution of pure milk and free ice comes almost at the very beginning of summer.

Nearly three months of hot weather are yet to be encountered.

If ever there was a time when the fullest beneficence possible to the Post-Dispatch Pure Milk and Free Ice Fund was needed, that time is now.

Every dollar contributed to the fund goes in full to the payment of the cost of distributing pure milk and free ice through the medium of the St. Louis Pure Milk Commission and the King's Daughters.

The existing increased need for pure milk and free ice in the city's tenement districts is a life-and-death need.

It must be met.

Will you help to meet it?

To grown folks and children alike this appeal is voiced.

The Post-Dispatch's readers have always responded splendidly to the pity-compelling cry for help that comes from the tenements in the hot summer time.

For more than six years they have maintained, by their contributions, the Post-Dispatch Pure Milk and Free Ice Fund, and this fund has proved itself an almost incalculable beneficence.

It now confronts the most serious crisis in all its history.

An amount of money sufficient to meet the long-sustained demands of the present summer, its early days the hottest ever known in St. Louis, must be raised.

The St. Louis Pure Milk Commission and the King's Daughters must be made to feel that they can respond to every need of every day of the summer now so menacingly begun.

In well-nigh every instance, it may be said, a life depends upon their satisfying response to each moment's individual need.

The Post-Dispatch calls upon its kindly readers for increased contributions to support the good work of which the Pure Milk and Free Ice Fund is the mainstay, the chief beneficiaries of which are the little children of the poor in the city's tenement districts.

The slogan of this great cause should move every heart to a deep pitifulness and an immediate and sustained helpfulness.

ONLY 2 SERIOUSLY INJURED ON FOURTH

The safe and sane movement, helped along by the intense heat, gave St. Louis the safest and sanest Fourth of July it has ever had.

No one was killed and only two persons seriously injured. Thirty-three persons received minor hurts in St. Louis and five in suburban towns. There were only a few fires and the damage was nominal. There was less noise during the day and less fireworks at night than on any preceding Fourth of July in St. Louis.

Such explosives as were used were comparatively harmless. Very few giant firecrackers were heard. Few arrests were made and it was a quiet day at the City Dispensay.

I can truthfully say that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is a very good medicine, not alone for kidney trouble, but also for weak and sore back, as well as for rheumatism.

About a year ago I became ill and unable to work, my trouble being a lame back. I read of your Swamp-Root in the newspaper and in an Almanac. Believing it would do me good I went to my druggist, Mr. Skinner, and purchased a bottle. Finding relief in one fifty-cent bottle, I purchased several more and in a short time was able to continue with my work and am today feeling well and strong. I always recommend Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root to my friends as I believe it is as good a medicine as can be found.

BOY GIVES UP HIS FIREWORKS, GOES BATHING, DROWNS

Heeds Parents' Wish as to Crackers, Steps Beyond Depth in Mississippi River.

Kenneth W. Mull, 15 years old, of 1916 Newhouse avenue, was drowned in the Mississippi while he was celebrating the Fourth of July by swimming with three other boys near the foot of Ferry street.

His was the only drowning which occurred in St. Louis waters Tuesday. A youth was drowned in the river at Alton, and a man in a pond near Madison.

Mull had been dissuaded by his mother and sister from his plan of celebrating the Fourth with fireworks. He was not a swimmer, but other boys urged him to accompany them to the river, saying it was shallow. This was true, but the lad waded out too far, stepped suddenly into deep water and sank. Henry Middlekamp, a boatman, tried to rescue him.

Henry J. Mull, father, and Philip Mull, brother of the drowned boy, dragged the river for several hours, but did not recover the body.

George Odell, 20 years old, of 2112 Holland street, Alton, went swimming with his brother, Joseph, at Hop Hollow. He dived, and did not come up. It is believed that his head struck a rock. His body was not recovered.

Georges Tonka, a car foundry employe at Madison, was drowned in Sand Pit, a pond half a mile north of Madison. He disappeared while swimming in the middle of the pool. The pool is very deep, and is regarded as treacherous, with eddies and whirlpools. It was formed by the high water in 1903, and has been the scene of several fatalities.

J. P. HARTNETT A U. S. WITNESS IN LAND SUIT

Called by Government to Tell How He Applied for Colorado Coal Acres.

Joseph P. Hartnett, secretary of the L. M. Rumsey Manufacturing Co., was the principal witness Wednesday in the hearing of the United States Government's suit to recover title to 2000 acres of Colorado coal lands which, it is charged, were wrongfully obtained.

The Government's suit is the sequel to unsuccessful criminal prosecutions. A number of St. Louisans, including L. M. Rumsey and F. W. Keitel, were indicted on fraudulent entry charges, but none of them was convicted.

Defendant a Witness.

Hartnett, though one of the defendants in the civil suit, was called as a witness for the Government in the hearing Wednesday before A. E. Hart, special examiner, in the Federal Building. E. B. Lacey, special assistant to the District Attorney at Denver, appeared for the Government, and Edwin H. Park for the defense.

The attorneys made what they deem practically a useless trip from a 76-degree temperature in Denver to St. Louis, where the temperature is hovering near 100. Nearly all the witnesses they expected to examine are away from St. Louis enjoying cooling breezes of summer resorts.

Subpenas had been issued for F. W. Keitel, Samuel Fordyce, Thomas Crouch and Edward F. Goltra. United States deputy marshals were unable to serve the subpenas, all of the men wanted being out of the city.

Efforts were made to reach other witnesses by telephone and the attorneys will remain until Wednesday to examine them.

Signed for Land.

Most of the questions asked of Hartnett on direct examination were about the circumstances under which he signed an application for land handed to him by Keitel May 10, 1904. This occurred in the office of the Rumsey company.

When asked whether he knew at the time the nature and contents of the paper he was signing, Hartnett said he could not be sure that he did. It took some fencing by Attorney Lacey to gain the admission that he did not know Keitel except as a frequent visitor to Rumsey, and that he was probably influenced by Keitel's acquaintance with his employer to sign the paper.

Hartnett said he did not know of the later disposition made of the land entries for which he signed. When powers of attorney, signed with his name at a later date than his application, were shown him, he said he had no recollection of having signed them.

"Did you, as a defendant in this suit, employ counsel?" he was asked.

"No," he replied, "but I understood that Mr. Rumsey did."

MEN SHED THEIR CLOTHES IN EFFORT TO FOIL POLICEMEN

Card Players Try to Make Arrest Impossible, but Are Finally Landed in Cells.

Policemen Ahring and Martin were passing 3515 North Broadway at 1:15 a. m., Wednesday, when they heard the shuffling of cards and the clinking of money. They broke in and arrested Val Trowich, Mike Astowich, Louis Kramer and Joe Kramer.

Trowich pressed a dollar bill into Ahring's hand and suggested that he "beat it," Ahring declared. Trowich then tried a $10 bill on him, with the same result.

Failing to get off that way, the men slipped out of their clothes and refused to accompany the officers, but they were compelled to partly dress themselves and were locked up.

In the Dayton street court they told Judge Sanders they were playing "Sandusky." Trowich could not explain the game in English. Neither could the others. Judge Sanders asked the lawyers if they knew what it was and none of them knew. He then appealed to the spectators, but nobody seemed to know anything about Sandusky. The Judge concluded that a game that nobody could explain must be pretty bad and he fined Trowich $10 and the others $5 each.

SCOTT IS HELD ON HOMICIDE CHARGE

Coroner's Verdict Follows Hearing After Street Duel Results in Death.

By a coroner's verdict of homicide, Charles E. Scott, a former probationary patrolman, was held Wednesday for the killing of William A. F. Drier, also a former policeman. They fought a duel near Drier's saloon on Arsenal street early Sunday morning.

Scott refused to make any statement, and Dr. R. W. Upshaw was the only witness. He told how Scott told him, soon after the shooting, that Drier proposed to fight their difficulties out, and fired on Scott, wounding him twice, before Scott fired. Their enmity was the outgrowth of financial difficulty, which caused Drier to make a complaint and bring about the dismissal of Scott from the force.

BABY DIES FROM HEAT AFTER IT IS BAPTIZED

NEW YORK, July 5.—Bearing a six-months-old baby in her arms, an exhausted woman appealed to Policeman Kolb of Union Hill, N. J., yesterday afternoon to direct her to a clergyman. The baby, she said, was dying from the terrible heat and it had not been baptized.

She had been unable to find a doctor in his office and the infant was so low that she feared to wait any longer.

The policeman accompanied the woman to the home of the nearest clergyman, to whom a hurried explanation was made. The clergyman baptized the child and it died while the mother and policeman were tramping in search of a doctor.

BOY ENMESHED IN A BALLOON TELLS OF 400-FOOT FALL

Gas Bag Ignites and Both Aeronaut and Unwilling Passenger Are Dropped.

TREE SAVES THEIR LIVES

Youth Becomes Tangled in the Ropes and Is Hauled Up, Before Topeka Crowd.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

TOPEKA, Kan., July 5.—Burt Curtiss, a balloonist, of Kansas City, Mo., and Walter Taylor of Topeka, who was anxious to see everything, furnished the real thriller at Topeka's sane Fourth celebration. They went up in a balloon, Taylor unintentionally, and both fell 400 feet when the balloon caught fire and collapsed. Both landed in a tree, which broke their fall, and aside from a few bruises, were not injured.

Taylor was standing near where Curtiss was filling the balloon. As the gas bag left the ground trailing its parachute and the aeronaut, one of Taylor's feet became entangled in a guy rope. He was unable to free himself and he rose in the air, grasped the rope and started upward, several feet beneath the parachute and Curtiss.

Crowd Shouts Warning.

The crowd was greatly excited and shouts and cries arose a moment later when the gas bag swerved to one side and caught fire and flames leaped up, enveloping it. In another instant the men began to fall, with the burning gas bag following them.

Luckily the men fell in the top of a tree. They tumbled through the branches and landed on the popcorn stand beneath. Neither was seriously injured although both were severely scratched and bruised. The balloon was a total wreck.

"I thought my time surely had come when I was whisked off my feet and felt myself going up," said Taylor today. "I didn't know what had happened or how. I didn't think I was standing on any of the ropes attached to the balloon, although I was in the front rank of crowd and close to the parachute.

"First I was dragged along the ground and then jerked into the air, head downward. I didn't want to make a balloon ascension. I wanted to see the other fellow make it. There was rope trailing below me and I grabbed it and pulled myself up so I would not die from the rush of blood to my head. My head was popping terribly already.

Sees the Balloon Topple.

"Just as I straightened myself out, standing in a loop of rope, I looked up and the balloon suddenly seemed to topple over to one side and a big flash of flames swept out from the hole. Just in an instant the whole bag was aflame. I looked down and the tree tops looked like they were a thousand feet away.

"I was so badly scared that I did not know what was going to happen. Then I felt myself dropping. I guess the balloon kept us from falling very fast, but it did not take nearly as long to fall through the branches of a tree as it did to get up that high. I grabbed for tree branches to try to stop, but I could not hold to anything, and just kept going down and then landed on top of that popcorn stand."

SEVEN ENGLISH BOATS SPRING LEAKS

Torpedo Destroyers Overstrained at Hulls While Under Full Speed Trial in Open Sea.

LONDON, July 5.—Seven of Great Britain's newest ocean-going torpedo boat destroyers have been put out of action by overstraining their hulls while under full speed trials in the heavy sea of the English Channel.

The destroyers Acorn, Alarm, Rifleman, Nemesis, Lyra, Nymphe and Larne reached Portland in such a leaky condition that all available divers were requisitioned to close the gaps in their seams, pending docking.

The trouble was the result of the tremendous vibration of the powerful engines, driving the little warships at a speed of 2[illegible] knots through the rough water.

When forced to quit, the stranger fired at Clymer with a pistol, killing him instantly. In the melee the daughter, 18 years old, was shot. Just as his father fell, a son of the deputy shot and killed the stranger.

SWIMMERS IN CHAUTAUQUA POOL ATTRACTED BY NOVEL BATHING COSTUMES OF THESE GIRLS

BAREFOOT GIRLS SET FASHION IN POOL AT PIASA

Five St. Louis Young Women Think Stockings Encumbrance When Swimming.

Barefoot beauties are giving staid Piasa Chautauqua a new sensation. Five St. Louis young women who are staying at the resort have emancipated themselves from the thraldom of stockings and every afternoon they "go in" at the pool with limbs bare to the knees and with the rest of their attractive persons encased in bloomer bathing suits.

The five are Miss Evelyn Eurnett of 5910 Michigan avenue, Miss Pear Clement, Miss Margaret Campbell and Misses Bess and Anna Higginbotham. Miss Burnett, who is an expert swimmer and diver, went up to the resort Tuesday on the launch "Phil Jr." The other four are members of a house party at the Woman's Relief Corps Cottage.

Swim Better When Free.

They have shed their stockings because they do not see any sense in the fashion of wearing such things in the water and because they can swim so much better and enjoy themselves so much more without such impedimenta.

Bathing suits sans stockings are an innovation at Chautauqua, and it remains to be seen whether the five will be pioneers of a stockingless regime. Custom is as strong there as anywhere else, and custom prescribes stockings on feminine feet when the owners of the feet go swimming on a summer day. Three years ago two married women from Quincy undertook to set the barefoot fashion, but they gave it up after a few days' trial and no other women had the hardihood to follow their example. From then until now there have been no barefoot feminine bathers.

One-Piece Bathing Suit.

Miss Burnett wears a one-piece bathing suit the scant folds of which are of little hindrance to her in her high dives from the springboard and the trapeze. The suits of the others run somewhat more to folds.

The argument for the stockingless suit was jarred somewhat when Miss Burnett came in third in a 25-yard swimming dash Tuesday afternoon. All the other girls in the race wore stockings and two of them, Miss Marian Nicks and Miss Grace Pingree, both of St. Louis, swam faster than she. Miss Nicks finished first, Miss Pingree second and Miss Burnett third. Miss Nicks is only 13 years old.

The race was one of several arranged by Porter Munson, the swimming instructor, as a part of the sane and safe celebration of the Fourth of July.

The 50-yard dash was won by Milton Bernet, St. Louis, first; Paul Zerwekh, Alton, second. Zerwekh won the 25-yard race, with Bernet second. Bernet won the candle race, with Ralph Becker second.

Porter Munson gave an exhibition of fancy high-diving from the roof of the pavilion, 35 feet above the water. He and Raymond Behymer of Lebanon, Ill., made a double dive from the top of the trapeze, Munson holding Behymer's ankles as they made the plunge.

Two Parade in Bathing Suits.

A Fourth of July sensation was created by two young women walking from a cottage on the grounds to the pool in bloomer suits. Ever since a party of St. Louis girls, several years ago, paraded from their cottage to the pool in rainbow suits, there has been a rule against persons passing through the grounds in bathing suits unless they are discreetly hidden under an enveloping mantle. The bloomer girls had not heard of the rule and the management did not hear of the bloomer [illegible] was too late.

EH, WHAT? A BUM SLOGAN, WELL SAY—

ST. LOUIS, July 3, 1911.

Editor Post-Dispatch:
Dear Sir:

ST. LOUIS has the goods! Your slogan stunt has certainly put us wise to some lines the old town carries. It not only has a paper that will loosen up with five hundred iron men to put a good one over; it not only has 80,000 civic fans who are Johnny on the spot when a good idea is doped out; it not only has 27 business heavyweights who are game to empty their think-tanks, working overtime to pick the winner; but it also has its knockers.

THE knockers divvy up into two bunches—one crowd who howl because they came across with bum slogans and got stung and are sore about it, and another gang who were too good to get in the mix-up because they couldn't dope out any slogan at all, but aren't a bit too good to hamner the slogan that win, because that is easy for anybody.

And the class to the ones that beef about slang! They sure do stack up some as "wells of English undefiled." Promoted harness bulls like Allender and Young; self-made plutes that started grabbing the dough at 9 years old, and four-flushers that would fall down on dictating a straight English letter, if their stenos hadn't been to Central High.

But when a real high-brow, like the librarian takes a crack at the slogan, does he rap it because it's slang? Not so you could notice it. He knows that slang is language hot off the bat; that today's slang is in tomorrow's dictionary and it's just because it's practically all slang that English has more pep to it than any other tongue.

Is Mayor Kreismann wise to the fact that "derrick" started out as the name of a hangman? Is the shoe manufacturer jerry to the vile slang he uses when he calls anything but a low-cut Oxford a shoe? If he didn't call a high shoe a boot, no Englishman would know what he was talking about. Does Chief Young tumble to how slangy he is when he talks about a patrolman "walking his beat?"

ARE any of them hep to this, that the very word slang itself is the vilest sort of slang—a thieves-jargon word that decent people didn't know the meaning of in Sir Walter Scott's time? Why didn't they complain that the slogan is vulgar or vernacular or idiomatic if they hate "slang" so?

It gets my goat to hear people knocking our slogan because it's slang. A good slogan ought to be slang. When a real cracker-jack slogan isn't slang it gets to be slang p. d. q. Look at the "57 varieties." There are 57 varieties of slang uses for that. It's a part of the American language now.

And getting down to brass tacks, Mr. Editor, I think the slogan has the goods. I cooked out a slogan myself and it wasn't slang and it wasn't so worse, but the one we've got beats it 40 ways from the jack. And you can gamble that if I had any kick coming on the way this contest has been run, now that it's over, I'd have too much spunk to open my head, even if I didn't have enough sporting blood to back my town's slogan, whatever it was.

Go to it, you St. Louis slogan, you've got the goods and I'm for you!

Colloquially,

SAMUEL JOHNSON.

SLOGAN IS SUNG TO KUNKEL MUSIC

Airdome Orchestra Will Make Song Regular Feature of Work in the Future.

The St. Louis slogan for which the Post-Dispatch paid a prize of $500 was heard in musical form for the first time in St. Louis Tuesday night when it was played by Guido Vogel's orchestra at the Empress Airdome, Grand avenue and Olive street.

The music was that written for the slogan by Charles Kunkel. Many in the audience joined in singing it in unison with the orchestra. Vogel says he will make the slogan music a feature of all his concerts.

MEXICO CITY, July 5.—The strike of street car employes was settled and the men will return to work. The settlement was a compromise, the company having granted a partial increase in the wages and made concessions in the matter of buying uniforms.

BOYS SEND FALSE ALARM

Elder One Wanted to See Horse Run.

To see the horses run, 12-year-old Thomas Stewart of 3209 Lucas avenue, told his playmate, Leo Keane, 7, to turn in a fire alarm from the box at Page and Spring avenues at 8 a. m., Wednesday. Patrolman Sweetin caught the boys as they were running away. The older boy was recently paroled on a charge of driving away with a horse and buggy.

16 ARE POISONED AFTER EATING ICE CREAM AT REUNION

Families of Neighbors Also Suffer After Drinking Same Milkman's Milk.

INVESTIGATION STARTED

Ptomaine Endangers Many Lives and Doctors Work All Night to Save Them.

Sixteen persons were poisoned by ice cream while attending a family gathering Tuesday at the home of John H. Joyce, 908 South Tenth street, East St. Louis. Physicians worked all night and until noon Wednesday before those stricken were all declared out of danger. The doctors announced that ptomaine poisoning was probably caused by impure milk used in the ice cream.

The ice cream was made by Mrs. Julia Galvin of 910 South Tenth street, whose family are among those poisoned. She bought the milk Tuesday morning from a milkman.

Members of four other families who purchased milk from this same milkman were stricken with ptomaine poisoning Tuesday afternoon and had to call physicians.

The matter was reported to the police, and Health Inspector Short is making an investigation.

Joyce, who is a yard clerk for the Southern Railroad, planned a family gathering to celebrate the Fourth of July. His parents and several neighbors were invited.

At 8:30 p. m. the two Joyce children, Catherine, 6, and Charles, 3, complained of severe cramps. Within a few minutes the others were in agony. Dr. A. E. Rives and Dr. Dan Boyd were called. They attended the patients all night.

All were able to be about Wednesday afternoon except Mrs. Galvin and her daughter Margaret. They are out of danger, the physicians announced.

The express agent at Ohio City, O., asserts that he put it on the car for Marion Junction and the agent at the latter place insistes that it did not arrive there.

A smaller case containing draperies reached Ashland. The picture was painted in Palestine and is said to be valued at $100,000.

POLICEMAN NOLAN LOST HIS NOODLE, SAYS SO HIMSELF

Rush of Two Arrests Mixes Him All Up in Making Out Tally Sheet.

HE PASSES AS NUGENT

Tells Superior He Can Prove He Is Nugent by Nugent Himself.

According to the official report made to the Police Board, Patrolman John P. Nolan "lost his noodle."

Nolan is in charge of the Virginia Avenue Substation of the Wyoming Street District. About one arrest a month is the average there. It is so quiet as a rule in that neighborhood that the man in charge of the station has to play thumbs up to keep from thinking about ghosts.

There was a large crowd at Priester's Park, which is only a few blocks away from the Virginia Avenue Station, and the police made two arrests.

He Becomes Confused.

Nolan was unable to cope with the rush. He became so confused from the abundance of work that he entered the names of the prosecuting witnesses on the sheet where he should have placed the names of the arresting officers, and the names of the policemen where he should have written the names of the prisoners.

Lieut. Deatherage of the Wyoming Street District did not know of Nolan's predicament until 11:04 p. m., when he had occasion to call the substation and inquire for Patrolman Nugent, who was to have relieved Nolan at 11 p. m.

"This is Nugent," said Nolan, who had remained behind to straighten out his records.

"It doesn't sound like you, Nugent," said Deatherage. "Your voice sounds more like Nolan's."

"Well, this is Nugent all right," replied Nolan. "I can prove it by Nugent himself. He's sitting right here in the station."

"What's that?" demanded Deatherage. "I'll be out there in a few minutes to find out who's who around that place."

Ten minutes later Lieut. Deatherage walked into the substation. He found Nolan and Nugent both on the job. Nugent was trying to help Nolan disentangle the records.

"What's the matter?" asked Deatherage as he scanned the sheets in front of the patrolmen. "Who's Patrolman Tim Gorton?"

"I wrote that name down for Tim Grogan," apologized Nolan.

"And who is Patrolman Harry Punler?" asked the Lieutenant as he ran his finger down the sheet.

"I beg pardon," replied Nolan. "That is the name of the prosecuting witness. I entered it in the wrong place."

Was All Mixed Up.

"What's the matter with you, anyway, Nolan?" was Deatherage's next question.

"I lost my noodle," Nolan replied. "We had a rush here tonight, and maybe the heat had something to do with it."

"But you had no right to represent yourself as Nugent when I called up, "said Deatherage. "You're suspended."

FRANKLIN FYLES DIES IN NEW YORK

For Thirty Years He Was Dramatic Critic for the Same Newspaper.

NEW YORK, July 5.—Franklin Fyles, for 30 years dramatic editor and critic of the New York Sun, is dead at his home here, of heart disease. He was born in Troy, N. Y., 64 years ago, and started to work in that city while a boy. He started as a reporter on the Sun when 20 years old and five years later became dramatic critic. His long service in that position made him due to succeed William Winter as dean of the critics in this city.

About eight years ago failing health compelled him to leave the Sun, and since then he has supplied dramatic criticisms and notes to 25 or more of the out-of-town papers.

Fyles was the author of several selections of short stories and one book on the stage called "The Theater and Its People." His most familiar work was "The Girl I Left Behind Me," which he wrote in collaboration with David Belasco. Other plays from his pen included "Cumberland," "'61," and "The Governor of Kentucky."

ROBBER WHO SHOT DETECTIVE KEELY RECEIVES PAROLE

John Julian, After Serving 10 Years of 40-Year Term, Released on the Fourth.

WAS ST. LOUIS GANGSTER

Former Assistant Chief Still Carries in Back One of Five Bullets Julian Put There.

John Julian was one of four convicts who received Fourth of July paroles from Gov. Hadley. He had served 10 years of a 40-year sentence for robbery in Kansas City. The St. Louisan to whom Julian's release from the penitentiary means most is John Keely, former Assistant Chief of Detectives, whom he shot five times in the back in resisting arrest.

Physicians were unable to remove all the bullets, and Keely carries one of them still. He said Wednesday, when he heard of Julian's parole, that he regarded the ex-convict as a dangerous man.

"I do not believe criminals of that type should be released from prison," said Keely.

"Julian was a crook from the time he was a boy. We arrested him in 1896, before he was of age. He was a member of a gang of daylight robbers. He served four years in the training school at Boonville.

"When he returned to St. Louis in 1900 he joined a gang known as Gordon's gang at Tenth and Walnut streets. Members of this gang had robbed several saloons and groceries and we were looking for them.

"I was riding to the Four Courts one day on an Eighteenth street car. I saw Julian and Mike Holden, another of the gang, and dropped off. I caught them in an alley. Both jerked to escape from me, and Julian got free. He ran a little way, when I succeeded in throwing Holden down. While I was engaged in subduing him, Julian slipped up behind me and fired five shots into my back.

"Both of them got away. Julian went to Kansas City, where he pulled off an icebox robbery. In attempting to escape from policemen he was shot. When he recovered he was tried and sentenced to serve 40 years.

"Frank Blake, who was formerly Pardon Attorney under Gov. Hadley, tried the case against Julian in Kansas City. He told me that efforts were being made to get Julian out, but that he knew his record and that as long as he was in office Julian would stay in the penitentiary."

Typist Who Gets $2000 Bequest From Employer

THIS is Mrs. M. D. Coke, the bride of a few weeks who has just inherited $2000 and two lots in Hot Springs, S. D., from her late employer, Charles E. Gallagher. Gallagher's bequest to the young woman, who was Miss Ina Griffith when she worked for him, and who was so named in his will, was larger than he made to any of his family except his son, Ernest A. Gallagher. She lived at 2200 Locust street up to the time of her marriage to Coke, a salesman, with whom she is now in Oklahoma.

The services of an intelligent and industrious stenographer were especially valuable to Gallagher because he was blind. He lost his sight in a Kansas blizzard 10 years ago, when he was a division superintendent on the Missouri Pacific. He later came to St. Louis and made money in the patent medicine business.

FIRE CONSUMES BUSINESS CENTER OF PRINCETON, MO.

By Associated Press.
PRINCETON, Mo., July 5.—Three business blocks, including the entire north side of the public square, are in ruins as the result of a fire of unknown origin which started late yesterday in an upper floor of a hardwore store. The loss is estimated at $250,000.

The town's main source of water supply is from a well, and not until relief was afforded by the Rock Island Railroad from its private water system were the flames checked early today.

The road ran a special train from Trenton, 25 miles south, carrying firemen and fire-fighting apparatus.

Princeton is the county seat of Mercer County and has a population of about 2500.

MRS. SHONTS AND HUSBAND SETTLE THEIR TROUBLES

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and New York World.
PARIS, July 5.—The Post-Dispatch correspondent learns authoritatively that an amicable settlement has been arrived at between Theodore P. Shonts, president of the Interborough Rapid Transit Co. of New York, and his wife, who is living in Paris.

The papers served on Shonts a fortnight ago in the suit of Mrs. Shonts for separate maintenance and for freedom from marital obligations have been withdrawn.

Former Judge Leventritt of New York, who is Mrs. Shonts' attorney, has had several consultations with his client here, and it is now known that the misunderstanding between Mr. and Mrs. Shonts will be settled without recourse to the courts.

BIG TELESCOPE AT LICK OBSERVATORY MOVED BY QUAKE

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
SAN FRANCISCO, July 5.—The Lick Observatory at the summit of Mount Hamilton seems to have been the center of the seismic disturbance of last Saturday, according to reports received here today from the remote observatory.

The 36-inch telescope was moved three-quarters of an inch out of place on its concrete pier, but was restored without trouble. The case of the Riefler clock was wrecked and minor damage was done to the working parts.

The chimneys of the observatory buildings were injured and a brick structure, which houses a number of astronomers, cracked so as to be unsafe for occupancy.

The shock was the most severe ever felt at the observatory.

HOT-WEATHER CONSTIPATION

People should be very careful at this time of the year not to become constipated, and if they do become constipated to attend to it promptly. Many people have a special tendency to constipation in hot weather, owing to the sudden change in food and to the fact that the natural moisture of the body that in winter remains within and helps to digest the food, leaves the system in the summer in the form of perspiration. Constipation should be immediately relieved. The best way to do this is not, as some suppose, by eating themselves sick with fruit and making the matter worse, nor by taking salts and laxative waters, which, as all who have tried them know, give but temporary relief; but, on the contrary, you should use a tried-and-true remedy like Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which acts quickly but mildly and which relieves permanently so that a steady and lasting cure results. A bottle can be bought of any druggist, in sizes of 50 cents and $1.00. Those who have not yet tried Dr. Caldwell's Syrup of Pepsin, and would like to make a test of it, can do so FREE OF CHARGE by sending their address for a SAMPLE BOTTLE to

MARLOWE FORCED TO QUIT

Actress Retires From Broadway Theater Because of Heat.

NEW YORK, July 5.—Greatly to the disappointment of both E. H. Sothern and Miss Julia Marlowe their engagement at the Broadway Theater has been discontinued.

Miss Marlowe was so affected by the heat during the performance of Macbeth on Monday night that it was with difficulty she finished. Yesterday her physician forbade the continuation of the engagement during the present heat. Her condition, while not alarming, is such as to make further performances on her part out of the question. The engagement was to have lasted one week, ending next Saturday night.

GIRL NEAR DEATH AFTER CAR CRASHES INTO FAMILY AUTO

Accident on Tower Grove Line Throws Four to Street, Wrecks Machine.

MOTHER SAVES SISTER

Motorman Sticks to Post as Glass of Vestibule Breaks Over His Head.

Mrs. J. C. Goodyear's first thought when she saw a Tower Grove car bearing down on an automobile in which she was riding with her husband and two children was for 11-year-old Florence Goodyear, seated beside her. She turned partly around and threw an arm about the girl as the car hit the auto, and although Mrs. Goodyear was seriously injured, the child escaped unhurt.

The accident occurred at 7 p. m. Tuesday. The Goodyears had left their home at 2306 South Jefferson avenue and Goodyear was driving west on Shenandoah avenue. Viola Goodyear, 14 years old, was beside him on the front seat. The street car was running south on California avenue.

The steering gear of the Goodyear automobile is on the left-hand side, and thus it happened that the street car was approaching on the side of the automobile where Mrs. Goodyear and Viola sat. The car shoved the automobile 35 feet before Simon P. Gerkin of 2022 Geyer avenue, the motorman, succeeded in stopping it.

The Goodyears were thrown into the street, but Mrs. Goodyear's protecting arm saved Florence from injury. Viola was still unconscious Wednesday, and Dr. Jacob Russler of 2620 South Jefferson avenue, who is treating her, thinks she has a clot of blood on the brain. He believes Mrs. Goodyear is internally hurt. Her chest was crushed.

Goodyear, who escaped with bruises, says the motorman of the car did not sound his gong, and Mrs. Goodyear corroborates this statement. Passersby said the gong was sounded.

"But I have to take my hat off to that motorman for courage," Goodyear said. "When I saw the car coming I opened up in the hope that I could get out of the way. I heard somebody yell at him to put on the brakes, and heard him reply that he had done it, just as we came together.

"Most men in his place would have jumped, but he stuck to his post, and I could see him gritting his teeth as the crash came and glass flew about his head."

The Goodyears were taken home in an automobile after temporary treatment in a drug store. Goodyear is president of a candy company. The damage to his automobile was estimated at $500.

WIFE DEFENDS BORDEN AFTER DIVORCE SUIT

Declares Rich Condensed Milk Maker Will Arrange a Proper Settlement.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., July 5.—Mrs. Helen Valk Borden, wife of Gail Borden of condensed milk fame, son of the founder of the business, and daughter of Lawrence B. Valk, has arrived at her father's home and for the first time told why she had filed suit for divorce. She denied that there was either a man or a woman in the case, and said Borden was indignant at the report casting a reflection on her.

"Mr. Borden has never accused me of wrong doing and I have never suggested he was too friendly with any woman," said Mrs. Borden. "But he has always been peculiar," she averred, "and during the last six years he has been cross, and recently has so hampered me in all my wishes that I could no longer live with him. All money matters between us have been amicably settled. There is no ill-feeling and there will be no contest."

As to the possession of their 16 year-old daughter, she said: "We will agree on something that will be satisfactory to both."

UNION OF 3,000,000 HOBOES IS PROPOSED

Head of Seaman's Union Considered Unorganized Men a Menace to Society.

NEW YORK, July 6.—President Andrew Furnseth of the International Seamen's Union of America has submitted a plan to President Samuel Gompers of the American Federation of Labor for the organization of 3,000,000 migratory workers, or "hoboes," throughout the country.

In submitting his plan Furnseth says: "According to statistics there are about 3,000,000 'hoboes.' This situation is dangerous to society as a whole and to the organized workers, and it is from them that the remedy must come. To organize these so-called workers, the first thing is to gain their confidence and their friendship, to show them what they can do alone and then we might be done when organized labor takes a serious hold on the situation."

GATES IS SLIGHTLY WORSE

But Paris Physician Says American Will Be Out Soon.

PARIS, July 5.—John W. Gates, who has been ill at the hotel Maurice here for several days, is reported to be slightly worse, but not in a dangerous condition. Gates has been suffering from a catarrhal affection of the throat which necessitated slight operations and gave much anxiety to his friends here, but his physicians promise that he will be out in a few days.

Gates has always been in rugged health and his confinement to the hotel for a week alarmed those who had been used to seeing him always in the thick of events.

Those who try Post-Dispatch wants in solving domestic and business problems as they come, are pleased with the wants.

Gas in Your Stomach Often Comes From Nervousness

Rather, from a nervous, irritable Stomach, and it takes a Remedy prepared particularly and especially for Stomach Gas to cure this.

Baalmann's Gas Tablets do this because they are prepared distinctly and especially for Stomach Gas, and particularly for all the bad effects coming from Gas Pressure.

That empty, gone and gnawing feeling at the pit of your stomach will forever disappear in a few days; that anxious and nervous feeling, with heart palpitation, will vanish and you will once more be able to take a deep breath, so often prevented by gas pressing against your heart and lungs.

Your limbs, arms and fingers won't feel numb and go to sleep, because Baalmann's Gas Tablets prevent gas interfering with your digestion. That intense drowsiness and sleepy feeling after dinner will soon be replaced by a desire for some form of entertainment.

Your distended stomach will reduce by inches, because gas simply cannot form after a few days' use of Baalmann's Gas Tablets.

Ask these persons what they think of Baalmann's Gas Tablets.

SUCCESSFUL.

The reports attest the success of the safe and sane Fourth movement everywhere and justify every argument advanced in its behalf and every restrictive law and ordinance. Perfection is still far from attainment and will not be reached until the younger generation, educated away from the idea that noise and danger are essential, has come into control.

In St. Louis the accidents recorded were not serious. Apparently nine-tenths of them were due to violations of the ordinance. The dynamite cap and the giant cracker were obtainable. Their sale should be forbidden as a first step to discouraging their manufacture.

And successful as were the celebrations conducted by the Patriotic Independence Day Association, this form of activity should be increased and elaborated. Subscriptions should be more generous and the municipality should cooperate. The next Fourth in St. Louis should bring a larger celebration and still less noise and carnage.

As President Taft has already officially denied Edward Hines' story twice, the latter is in duty bound to regard former Senator Aldrich as a gray-haired deceiver.

SHOE MACHINERY TRUST.

The factory to be opened by the Shoe Manufacturers' Alliance for the purpose of fighting the Shoe Machinery Trust ought to be a success, as it will have the support of the shoe manufacturers, who are anxious to get out of the power of the grasping and tyrannical trust. St. Louis would be the best site for such a factory, because of its central location and standing as a shoe manufacturing city.

The efforts of the shoe manufacturers to restore competition may be hastened by the investigation of the Shoe Machinery Trust, which has been ordered. It has monopolized 97 per cent of the machinery used in making shoes, and through its long contracts and ironclad rules, which are manifestly against public policy, has gained complete control in its field of industry and commerce.

Congress can render material aid in breaking the monopoly by removing the 45 per cent tariff on foreign machinery.

King George has become a member of the American Cross of Honor, a society of heroes. He qualified last week.

THE HOT FOURTH.

The morning of the Fourth of July, 1911, found the inhabitants of the United States interested in only one thing—the heat wave. In St. Louis it was the only theme of conversation and banished the usual holiday thoughts. Records had been broken throughout the land and conditions prevailed that were unique in the known meteorological history of North America. There was an immensity in the area of high temperatures that would have appealed to the imagination, if the imagination had not been jaded by the heat.

Newspaper readers yesterday morning were astonished to learn that while it had been 104 degrees at Yuma, Ariz., the mercury had scored 102 at Boston, Mass. St. Joseph, Mo., was as hot as Yuma, and away out at Fatherpoint, where the St. Lawrence enters the sea, the thermometer registered 92. Montreal and Quebec figures were the same for both cities, 94. Boston's 102 was the highest ever known for the New England capital. Washington, D. C., made good with 99. On the eve of the nation's chief holiday, 6 p. m., July 3, St. Louis was sweltering under a temperature of an official 100, with a street temperature of 107, equally official.

The Fourth of July, 1911, will, in all probability, be known for a generation as the hot Fourth. It was a day of national suffering from the heat, made, perhaps, more noticeable from the fact that it was a holiday. The bounds of the tropics were abolished and the north temperate zone melted away, dissolved in the burning sunlight, and giving us all a touch of India without having acquired the toleration enjoyed by the dwellers on the banks of the Ganges and the Indus.

So far as St. Louis is concerned, there is but one lesson we can learn, and that is to plant more trees here. Heat must be fought with shade and not with the ice chest alone. Shady streets adorned with man's natural protector from the heat, are as useful as they are beautiful.

GOVERNMENT BY MACHINE.

There need be no alarm that the interests of St. Louis will be neglected when the Municipal Assembly begins its three months' vacation. The hundred organizations devoted to the study of the problems which should, but do not, interest municipal statesmen will be on guard. The alert members of these organizations know none of the pangs and pains incident to deciding the politics and the degree of the partisanship of applicants for jobs. They suffer no physical weariness as the result of disorganizing and redisorganizing the House of Delegates so that it shall always be in harmony with the disorganized Republican City Committee. Their nerve cells have not been atrophied by discussing the superiority of Kreismann's chances for downing Kiel or the greater probability that Kiel will down Kreismann.

This all-absorbing row is one of the penalties of conducting a municipal corporation as the appendage of a political machine. Another manifestation of exclusive partisan and political interests on the part of municipal lawmakers is the presence in such numbers of civic organizations. They are the product of governmental indifference or the indifference of the people's representatives to governmental duties. In theory the interests of the city are paramount; practically they are not. In the theory the aim of municipal government is to secure the adequate discharge of municipal functions for the benefit of all citizens; practically the result is to provide an excuse for a political machine that will distribute the jobs to its own advantage.

It is conceivable that a municipal assembly might do its best work by interfering as little as possible with fixed forces. But this is not now true of St. Louis. Something more than making appropriations to keep going the routine of municipal activities is necessary. Until the Municipal Assembly takes upon itself the obligation to discharge all its duties we may expect these organizations to multiply. Each represents some form of protest against municipal inefficiency and is more or less a usurper of municipal functions. They are the product of conditions analagous to those which call into existence vigilance committees when police authority fails to afford the necessary protection to life and property. Thus we have the Real Estate Exchange through a committee directing and advising in the matter of the construction of the Free Bridge. The Civic League's committee has just made a report on the electrification of terminals which should shame the Assembly for its information and completeness, if not for its conclusions. All manner of improvements for the city are under consideration by volunteer organizations and each is a mark of the failure of the Municipal Assembly to do something considered necessary. Without multiplying instances or citing the great variety of matters to which the Municipal Assembly should devote its attention, if St. Louis is to progress and prosper, it is enough to say that there is crying need that the municipal lawmakers devote their attention to municipal affairs and cease their political squabbles. A certain result of the policy that has prevailed will be the smashing of the machine. Then the lesson will once more have been learned that the best politics a party can play is to work honestly and fearlessly in the interests of the whole community.

All guilty corporation officials are now coming within earshot of the Public Crier, as he invites them to walk into court, plead guilty, pay their fines and take a chance of going to jail to boot.

BABIES IN HOT WEATHER.

Excessively hot weather increases the mortality among infants unless the food they are getting is perfectly adapted to their needs. Without pure milk and the ice to keep it fresh, many mothers in the hot downtown districts will have to mourn for empty cradles.

The Pure Milk and Free Ice Fund is being ably supported through the efforts of those who have organized entertainments, and the children who have lent their aid are especially to be commended. The fund has already passed the figures of the 1905 and 1908 totals, and is in excess of the total for this date last year.

But it is evident that this is an exceptional summer. The need is extreme, and the large number of individual contributors who are usually to be found on the roll of honor have not come forward. There should be a hundred contributors where there is but one. Send in your dollar or your dime and help to save some helpless baby's life.

It is only too natural that a year of great drouth should be a year of many drownings. In times of flood people who cannot swim keep away from the water.

THE SUPERNAL AS A STEADY DIET.

What is poetically called "the wine and honey of lovely life" is highly desirable. Nothing is more desirable in its place. It is just that those whose business it is to supply it should be held in the esteem which belongs of right to Mr. Richard Le Gallienne as an essayist, critic and poet. In all these capacities, Mr. Le Gallienne supplies the wine and honey of lovely life in lots to suit. At times, when the fine is not good enough for his customers, he supplies the superfine, scented with all the balm of the thousand flowers of exquisite fancy.

It is certainly in this very connection that Mr. Le Gallienne had nothing to say the other day when the New York courts were granting Mrs. Julie Borregard Le Gallienne "an interlocutory decree of divorce." There was nothing left to say. In his eloquent silence, the purveyor of exquisite fineness and perfumed superfineness summed what they have meant for the last thousand years and what they will mean for the next thousand.

With digestions adapted to pork and beans, corned beef and cabbage, we need frequent suggestions of the supernal, hints of the heavenly, whiffs of the odors of paradise. If, after them, we come back to our regular diet, we may go on aspiring for the celestial. When, however, we conclude that we are adapted only for the celestial, the experiment of living on the balm of a thousand flowers, ends always in the same way. Male or female, we find that we were the more deceived in thinking ourselves more supernal than other members of a race, sternly adapted by nature to such staples as pork and beans as a steady diet. Then, in such a case, there remains the wisdom of silence. In Mr. Le Gallienne's case, it is almost if not quite supernal.

Gov. Hadley explains the vacancy in the Police Board by remarking that he considers it best to let sleeping dogs lie. The public impression has been that he was waiting to see how some very wide-awake cats were going to jump.

All these aviation records are made on a horizontal course. Perpendicular speed tests are never reported as fractured records.

FACTS ABOUT ST. LOUIS YOU OUGHT TO KNOW

No. 17.

Written for the Post-Dispatch
By WM. FLEWELLYN SAUNDERS,
Secretary and General Manager of the Business Men's League.

Fifty St. Louis factories, with 7,100 persons working in them, made furniture last year which was sold for $4,250,000.

Some of these factories are exclusively for repairing; some specialize on beds, and one makes only car seats.

St. Louis is appropriating the manufacturing of car seats and of metal beds, and is distinguished in these two branches of manufacture. The larger factories are growing into the manufacture of the finer qualities of bank and office furniture.

The office furniture of the Business Men's League—mahogany—is a beautiful example of the St. Louis workmanship. The St. Louis factories lately went into the open market against the keen competition of the oldest and most aggressive New York, Chicago and Grand Rapids manufacturers, and got the entire contract for furnishing the Central Library here.

The St. Louis furniture factories have largely increased their output since the census reports of 1905, and are enlarging the territory in which they sell, confining themselves no longer to the South, but extending their influence into the far West and the North.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

The Slogan in Seattle.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Just received your issue of the 25th here and had the pleasure of being the first visitor to place on the register of the Seattle Commercial Club our new slogan, "St. Louis has the goods," and suggest that it might be well to have all of our home people register in a like manner while away from the city.

Right here let me say that the fact that "St. Louis has the goods" is in itself insufficient if we are forever to be handicapped by the Chinese wall which the Terminal Association maintains around our city, and the only true slogan, in my opinion, that will ever be effective and have the true ring about it, and one which will bring about results to the greatest benefit of all, will be when we can truthfully announce to the world at large that "St. Louis' gates are wide open and free to all who may care to enter."

It would result in the immediate investment of millions of dollars in new factory plants, necessarily bringing with them thousands of workmen, who in turn would have to be housed and fed, insuring an immense increase in our buildings and commercial business of all kinds.

At it is, I find the "fourth city of U. S. A." known throughout the States and Canada for its fine churches of every denomination, for its fine schools and universities, both public and private, for its beautiful parks and driveways, for its magnificent and attractive homes and clubs, and for the stability of its banking and commercial interests. Add to this that we have thrown off the yoke of associated Terminalism and you will have accomplished something that will advertise and build up our city faster than anything that has been done for it in years.

Alaska "had the goods" (gold) for ages past, but lay dormant until proper transportation facilities were provided for in order to get it into the market. St. Louis is today surrounded with the richest agricultural lands in the world, but like Alaska's gold, for ages past, we are not reaping the benefit of it, owing to lack of railroad competition.

If there is any one thing above all else that must have impressed the hundreds who were out on my friend Saunders' "Know St. Louis" open flat car outing, it must have been the fact that it is not owing to lack of available track property that St. Louis does not acquire more factories, and all of the junkets, outings and banquets indulged in by the Million Population Club and other organizations will not bring them without railroad competition, for the working heads of large factories demand and must have railroad competition for freights, their only surety for fair freight rates and prompt service.

Bring about railroad competition and you will have killed the germ which has been sucking the vitality of our commercial life, and, to a great extent, is holding back the building of a Greater St. Louis.

At Seattle here, a city of about 250,000 population of ambitious, brainy, energetic men and women, they have both railroad and water competition, with the result that the Oregon & Western Railroad has just spent about $1,000,000 for a new station and terminals, and the Great Northern Railroad about $750,000 for similar work. This does not include the enormous sums paid out by the steamship companies for docks, tracks, etc., and they are still at it.

It may interest my real estate friends at home to know that at Calgary, the largest city between Winnipeg and Vancouver, with a population of about 56,000 people, they have by actual count in their city directory 240 real estate firms, who pay a license of $50 per year, while at Vancouver, with a population of about 160,000, their latest city directory has by actual count 950 firms in the same line of business. This does not include curbstone brokers, of whom there is an unlimited number. Vancouver at the present time enjoys single tax, but this I find a very uncertain proposition, as it is subject to change from year to year, leaving the amount of taxes to be paid on improvements, both present and future, an unknown amount.

Wishing you success in your efforts to build up a Greater St. Louis and trusting that the day may come in the near future when we can advertise to the world at large that no one corporation is in a position to advertise the fact that they absolutely own and control the only gateway leading into St. Louis, and that we can boast of having our gates wide open and free, I remain,

A. F. HERMANN,
Vice President.

Baby-bye,
Here's an insect of the tribe Diptera,

We will watch him

There he goes
On his curiously appendaged extremities,

Over baby's nose.
See him crawl
With his six legs, each having five-jointed tarsuses, his three-sectioned antennae with the marvelous tactile tips waving before him—
Upon the wall,
Seeking food with his spongy-lipped proboscis, hanging downside up on the ceiling; yet, on account of his claw-like feet and appendaged sides,
He will never fall.

A CATHEDRAL BALLROOM.

From the New York World.

Reports from Washington describing a sumptuous ballroom being erected for one of the stately homes of that city say: "The woodwork will be of cypress treated to appear 200 years old. It will be constructed in imitation of the cathedral style."

The staining of the wood to make it appear 200 years old savors something of veneered poverty, since our most magnificent patron of art always buys something that is really ancient. But let that pass. What frets the soul in this achievement of Washingtonian splendor is the fitting up of a dance room in the style of a cathedral.

When it was objected that New York architects copy Greek temples for bank buildings, it was said in their defense that the style is appropriate enough—that in a city where Mammon is worshipped it is right the bank should take the shape of a temple. But can any such defense be made of the Washington use of cathedral designs for ballrooms? Does society in that city worship when it dances? Or dance when it worships?

Cannon Firing.

From the Chicago Record Herald.

Hiram Maxim says he has completed an invention which will make it possible to fire the largest cannon without flash or sound. Now, if he will stop the recoil and make the shot harmless cannon firing may become a real pleasure.

Higher Standards.

From the Washington Star.

New York has decided that automobiles may not smoke in public, thus emphasizing the metropolitan determination to attain higher standards of morals and politeness.

A la Lorimer Case.

From the Chicago Record Herald.

Q. Have you ever in your life done anything that you wished later you had refrained from doing?
A. No. Absolutely not.

WHEN THE TRUMPET VINE IS BLOOMING.

When the trumpet vine is blooming
Is a dandy time for bugs,
For the terrible mosquito
And for aviating slugs.
It is true the woods are pretty
And the sweet brown thrasher sings,
But there is no season like it
For the serenade of wings.

It is then the caterpillar
Sails around between the trees
And the aviating cricket
Spreads his pinions to the breeze.
You can hear the whirr of motors
Softly passing overhead,
And the night is full of music
When the trumpet vine is red.

When the trumpet vine is blooming
Is a dandy time for things
That are somewhat shy of feathers
But are Johnny with the wings.
It's a time for pennyroyal
And a lot of other drugs,
And Nature is an incident
To bugs, bugs, bugs.

LAMENT.

If the weather
Had been
Safe and sane,
The celebration
In the main
Had been
A beautiful success,
From what
We hear,
And nothing less.
The list
Of killed
Is so decreased
That shooting
Probably
Has ceased,
And time is not
So far withal
When no one will
Be shot at all.

Alas for us
The weather could
Not also come
To being good,
But had
With all
Its might and main
To have an old-time
Fourth again,
And did, in fact,
Observe the day
Almost exactly
In the way
We used to do
Until we hit
Upon the
Foolishness of it.

Ex-Prex Eliot thinks we should always observe the Fourth. He need not worry. As soon as we have wearied of celebrating our independence of England we can begin celebrating our independence of the cannon cracker and the blank cartridge.

Jack I, who was crowned at Reno, has begun the second year of his reign.

A Horrible Example.

When the Hon. Champ Clark last visited Georgia he was much amused by the sad case of an aged colored man as set forth by the negro's wife.

It appears that Mr. Clark was walking along the main street of a town in that State when he came upon an old couple. The man was staggering, and the woman was berating him soundly.

"You are evidently of the opinion that liquor is not good for your husband," the Representative ventured to remark to the old negress.

"Ain't good for him?" retorted the old woman. "Of co'se it ain't good for him. It ain't good for nobody. Why, suh, old Joe heah he's 90 yeahs old, an' done drink liquor all his life. Now look at him! Ef he had let dat stuff alone he mighter been a hundred by dis time!"—July Lippincott's.

Not to Be Fooled.

A mission worker in New York tells of a youngster who had never been to "the country" until the occasion of a "fresh-air" excursion whereof he was a member.

One day this lad was seen closely examining a certain trim, well-made object on the farm. He stared at it for a while and then shook his head dubiously.

"What are you looking at, son?" asked the farmer.

"Where's the doors and windows?" inquired the boy.

"Doors and windows? Why, that's not a house; it's a haystack."

"Excuse me, pop!" returned the youngster. "You can't string me that way. Hay doesn't grow in things like that."—July Lippincott's.

Reflections of A Bachelor Girl

Written for the Post-Dispatch

By Helen Rowland

SINGLE blessedness is its own reward.

A real Bohemian is a man who can descant upon the Higher Life, eat fried onions and flirt with a pink and yellow model, all at the same time.

Now is the time of the year when love-pirates roam the seashore and the cities are filled with flirts in stenographer's clothing, so that no man is safe.

Most husbands and wives appear to regard matrimony as the repair department, in which it is their duty to remodel one another.

A black gown and a crepe veil lend a woman the same fatal fascination as brass buttons and shoulder straps lend a man.

A little kiss exceedeth great argument, and a small check worketh wonders where a good excuse falleth flat.

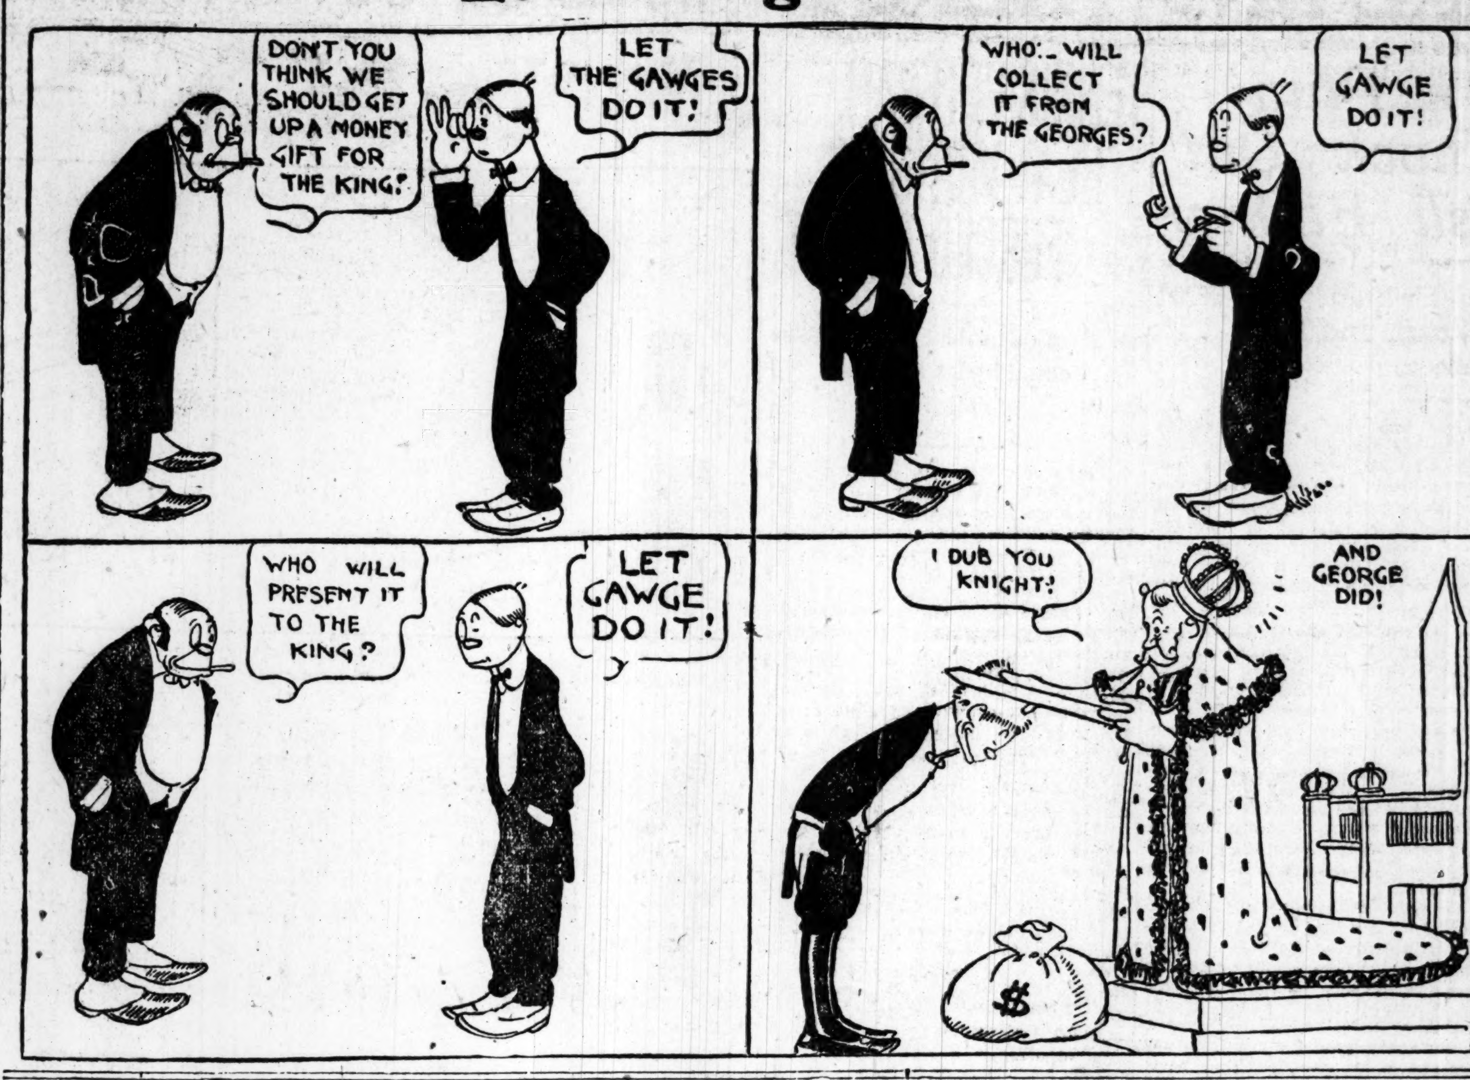

Of two evils, almost any girl will choose the one without a mustache.

A man who passes up the wine of love for fear of the headache gets about as much joy out of life as the dyspeptic who is afraid to eat his dinner for fear of indigestion.

The O'FLYNN

BY JUSTIN HUNTLY McCARTHY.

Second in the Post-Dispatch series of summer novels. "The Social Bucaneer" began the series which Justin H. McCarthy's charmingly novel story of "The O'Flynn" continues. This will be followed by "The Inner Shrine," an anonymous novel, dealing with the matrimonial problem, which has created a great furore on two continents.

CHAPTER XX.

The Fall of Knockmore.

O'FLYNN rose to his feet, possessed himself of Van Dronk's pistol, and studied the sleeping man's face closely to make sure that he was really as helpless as he seemed. "Come," he murmured, "that's a good beginning, anyway, as Adam said when he found a name for the elephant." As he spoke he opened his waistcoat and produced from a secret pocket in the lining a long coil of fine silk rope. "It's a thousand pities," he continued addressing the sleeping Dutchman, "you are so sleepy, General, or I'd tell you the rest of my tale of capturing your castle." As he spoke he was about to move toward the door when he was paralyzed into rigidity by a loud knocking at the door.

For a moment O'Flynn's warm blood seemed to run cold and he stood thunderstruck; this was an unexpected interruption that looked like baffling his plan at the very moment of apparent success. But the O'Flynn's wit was never still for long; his quick eyes glanced around the room and surveyed it strategically while his active mind worked briskly.

In a moment he had drawn the great screen a little closer round the table where the sleeping Van Dronk sat, and resumed his own [illegible] opposite the General. The screen was now arranged so that no one entering the room could see the person seated at the table without approaching and looking round its curtain. O'Flynn called out, imitating Van Dronk's voice: "Wat belieft U? What you want?" Instantly he heard the door open and the tread of Trusham as he entered the room; then the voice of Trusham spoke:

"An envoy from the enemy, with a safe conduct, asks to see you."

O'Flynn now did a daring thing: he carried on the conversation between himself and the unconscious General, parodying Van Dronk's voice very happily. "The devil!" he cried, mimicking the guttural Dutch tone. "Houd op. Wacht een oogenblick. Wait a minute." Then, speaking in his own voice, he entreated: "Oh, General darling, maybe it's somebody come after me; sure, you'll never be after giving me up." Returning to Van Dronk's voice, he continued: "Be not alarmed, mijn vriend, you shall in safety be kept." Raising his voice he called to Trusham: "Wat wilt gij zeggen? Why do you me like this interruption?"

Trusham explained: "Your pardon, General, but the matter seems urgent. This person, who declines to give his name or show his face, knows and uses our secret password."

Flynn, with the Van Dronk's voice upon him, muttered: "The devil! This must important be." He became Irish again as he pleaded: "Oh, General, for the love of heaven, put me somewhere in safety;" and he answered his own pleading as Van Dronk: "Be easy, mijn vriend, you shall in my bedroom go." Again he called to Trusham in the voice of the Dutch General: "Where is this personage?"

"He waits at the gate, General!" Trusham answered, "pending your decision."

Flynn, still speaking as Van Dronk, commanded: "So. Send him to me at once."

Then, as soon as he knew that Trusham had gone out and closed the door behind him, he muttered to himself, "Now, who the devil can this be, and what the devil am I to do?" He addressed the sleeping Van Dronk reproachfully. "If I'd known you were going to have visitors, General dear, I'd have kept you awake a bit longer. As it is, I must take your place for a while, my boy."

A whimsical idea had occurred to Flynn, born of his recent brief successful attempt to mimic Van Dronk's voice: he would carry on still further an imposture so successfully begun. Swiftly he lifted Van Dronk's enormous black periwig from his head, leaving him to look grotesque enough with his round bald skull shining in the fire-light. Flynn pulled the periwig well over his own fair hair, adjusted it to his face to conceal it as much as possible with the drooping ringlets; then he put on Van Dronk's great military cloak and huge black hat, pulling the latter well over his face and drawing up the collar of the cloak high above his chin.

Taking hold of the great arm chair in which Van Dronk sat, he swung it bodily around with its occupant so that there was nothing visible of the sleeping man to anyone entering the room. Then he blew out the candle that flickered on the table, leaving the room to be lit only by the fitful flames of the fire. He seated himself by the table and waited for events with one hand firmly clasped on the butt of Van Dronk's pistol.

A moment later there came [illegible] knock at the door. "Kom binnen," Fly[illegible] called out, and immediately Trusham [illegible]tered the room followed by a man heavily enveloped in a military cloak. Flynn was mightily curious to ascertain the identity of Van Dronk's mysterious visitor, but in the dim light he could make nothing of him. Flynn made a gesture of dismissal to Trusham, who immediately left the room, Flynn was left alone with the stranger.

The stranger advanced to speak, and instantly Flynn, with a pang of horror and a thrill of triumph, recognized the voice of my Lord Sedgemouth.

"General Van Dronk"— Sedgemouth began.

But Flynn lifted his hand, and still speaking with the heavy Dutch speech of Van Dronk, said to him, "Stop. First of all, give the password."

"Nassau," Sedgemouth answered at once.

Flynn thanked him. "So. Excuse. I am a man of few words. Who are you?"

"With your permission," Sedgemouth replied coldly, "I will keep my name to myself. I am properly accredited, as you may believe, from my knowledge of the secret password, and as you will know when you do me the favor to read this."

As he spoke he drew a letter from his breast pocket and handed it to Flynn, who, taking it, went toward the fireplace and glanced at it by the light of the fire; then he turned to Sedgemouth. "You know the contents of this letter?" he asked.

"I do," Sedgemouth answered.

"Repeat them," Flynn ordered.

Sedgemouth obeyed his wish: "In this letter you are instructed by your august master, King William, to open communication with your enemy's general, offering to surrender this castle into his hands if you and your garrison are allowed to march out with all the honors of war."

Flynn grunted. "A very strange letter," he said thickly.

"But one," Sedgemouth said dryly, "that I presume you are prepared to obey."

"Wacht een oogenblick," Flynn replied; "I am a man of few words. Who are you?"

"That is not necessary"— Sedgemouth began.

But Flynn interrupted, insisting. "It is for me necessary. I suppose I speak with Lord Sedgemouth?"

Sedgemouth shrugged his shoulders. "Suppose what you please."

Flynn continued in his broken English: "This is an astonishing order for me who can this castle for a year hold. There must be good reasons for this so astonishing order."

My Lord Sedgemouth began to grow impatient. "Of course there are good reasons," he said sharply.

"Tell them me," Flynn commanded.

"You have your orders," Sedgemouth responded angrily.

"Which I not understand,' Flynn continued. "Perhaps I do not English very well know. I must have some reason why I should this thing do."

My Lord Sedgemouth seemed to think that it were best to humor this troublesome Dutch gentleman. "I can say no more than this, that on your obedience depends a plot to rid King William of King James."

Flynn was pertinacious. "How shall the surrender of this stronghold to the enemy rid King William of King James?"

My Lord condescended to explain a little. "The surrender of this castle to Lord Sedgemouth means the appointment of Lord Sedgemouth to such a post of confidence about the person of King James as will enable him to facilitate the plot."

"A plot to kill King James?" Flynn said hoarsely.

Sedgemouth put the matter in another way. "A plot to get King James out of the way," he said suavely. "Now, are you satisfied?"

Flynn grunted, "Quite satisfied."

"Then you will surrender the castle tomorrow?" Sedgemouth asked.

Flynn nodded. "Tomorrow," he acquiesced.

My Lord Sedgemouth saluted him. "I take my leave," he said.

"Your visit has delighted me," Flynn observed politely. He called out, "Hulloa, Lieutenant," and Trusham entered the room. "Send the gentleman to the gate."

Sedgemouth again saluted him. "Good night, General."

"Good night," Flynn responded. He waited until Sedgemouth and Trusham had disappeared and then began to carry out his deferred preparations, talking to himself the while. "Here's a pretty kettle of fish; oh, my dear Lord, you're a bigger rogue than I took you for. You mustn't know for a bit how I've fooled you, though." And all this while O'Flynn's Own catching their deaths of cold at the foot of the rock, poor dears."

He took off Van Dronk's periwig as he spoke and replaced it on the round head of the slumbering Dutchman; Van Dronk's cloak and hat he returned to the chair from which he had taken them. Picking up his own hat from the table where it lay, he went to the window and opening it cast the hat circling and whirling into the air. Then he began to pay out the long coil of fine silk rope with which he was provided, murmuring to himself the while as he did so: "Sure this is more ingenious than the taking of Troy. Ulysses with his wooden horse was a joke to O'Flynn with his fishing tackle."

The rope swung lax from his strong hands, but presently it appeared to tighten. "I think I feel a bite," he murmured; "yes; here they come, the bold heroes." As he felt the restrain on the rope he began slowly and steadily to haul it up until after a little while the grappling hooks of the rope ladder came within his reach. He fixed them firmly to the window sill and waited for what seemed an incalculably long time, though it was really only a matter of a few minutes until he saw the head of the first man mounting up to him through the darkness. He drew aside and in another moment Conamur had scrambled through the window and climbed in. He was rapidly followed by Coin, Gosling, Winshaw and half a dozen others of the O'Flynn's Own. The men ranged themselves noiselessly in the great room obedient to the warning of O'Flynn's uplifted finger.

"Now, boys," Flynn whispered, "it's as quiet as mice you'll be, for though I've muzzled the old cat we aren't out of the trap yet."

"God bless you, Captain darling," Coin muttered approvingly.

"Whist, now," Flynn replied; "you remember what you have got to do?"

"Yes," Conamur answered.

Flynn remembered honest Trusham waiting in the ante chamber, and he wished the latter to come to no harm. "There's a lad outside," he whispered, "that I don't want to hurt, but he must be got rid of. Stand there in the darkness."

The men drew back into the darkest corner of the room, silent and motionless, holding their breaths. Flynn went to the door of Van Dronk's bedroom hard by the fireplace, opened it, withdrew the key from the lock inside and placed it in the lock outside; then he went toward the main door and called out in a loud voice, "Lieutenant!" Immediately Trusham entered the room.

Flynn greeted him amiably. "The General wants you," he explained; "he's in his bedroom."

There was nothing surprising in the O'Flynn's statement, nothing to cause Trusham the slightest suspicion of alarm. Instantly, Trusham crossed the floor, and, knocking, entered the General's bedroom; in another instant Flynn had shut the door behind him and locked it. He then turned toward his men who now emerged from the protection of the darkness. "O'Flynn's Own, follow me!" he cried, and left the room rapidly, with his fellows at his heels.

For a moment silence reigned in the great room, a silence speedily broken by the voice of Trusham, who discovered in the first place, that General Van Dronk was not in his bedroom; and, in the second place, that he, Trusham, was locked into that room. Trusham rattled at the handle of the door angrily: "There is no one here," he shouted. "I say, there is no one here, and the door is locked." He shook the door fiercely, but he was unable to open it. "I can't get out," he repeated; "will you please open the door?"

As no one obeyed his request Trusham began to get seriously alarmed. "What is the matter?" he again shouted. "Let me out, let me out."

At this moment his fears were increased by the ominous tolling of the castle bell. "General are you there?" he yelled. "Open the door, or I will blow it open."

He paused for a moment, then, plucking the pistol from his belt, he fired at the lock and shattered it. The door was soon opened, and Trusham, with the smoking pistol in his hand, sprang into the room. As he turned to the fireplace he saw the motionless figure of Van Dronk huddled helplessly before the fire in his chair. Trusham shook him violently by the shoulder, but failed to rouse him. "Good God, General!" he cried, "what is all this? Wake up! Wake up!"

Looking wildly about him, he caught up a bottle of wine, poured some of the contents into a cup and dashed the liquor into Van Dronk's face. The touch of the cool fluid did something to restore Van Dronk to his senses; he opened his eyes and stared stupidly at Trusham.

Outside, the night was now full of noises, the shouting of voices, the discharging of firearms, and the tolling of the great bell.

"What the devil are you making this noise for?" Van Dronk demanded, sleepily.

Trusham shook him violently. "Rouse yourself, General; something has gone wrong."

Van Dronk, aided by Trusham, managed to struggle to his feet. "Heaven and hell," he cried, "I begin to remember. Where is that damned scoundrel?"

"Not the Irishman?" Trusham cried, beginning to understand what had happened.

"Yes, the damned Irishman," Van Dronk grunted. "The castle is betrayed! To arms!"

As he tried with Trusham's aid to cross the floor the great door opened and O'Flynn entered the room followed by a number of O'Flynn's Own.

"The castle is ours, General," Flynn cried, cheerfully, to the stupefied Dutchman and the astonished Englishman. "God save King James! I'll have to trouble you for your sword, General."

Sullenly Van Dronk, who was now fairly restored to consciousness by the shock of the sudden catastrophe, drew his sword from its sheath and handed it to the victorious Irishman.

"Well, General," Flynn went on, "if you didn't save my life at Schwartheim, you did me a good turn this night by believing my story, and one good turn deserves another." He turned to Conamur: "Lieut. Conamur, find horses for Gen. Van Dronk and Lieut. Trusham and send them under escort with the compliments of the O'Flynn to Gen. Schomberg's camp. There you can still serve King William, General."

Conamur evidently questioned the discretion of his chief. "Why do you let them go, sir?" he asked in a whisper.

And Flynn answered him in another. "I have my reasons for wishing them out of the way just now." He addressed Van Dronk again: "Allow, me, General," he said. As he spoke he took from Van Dronk's belt the bunch of keys which symbolized the possession of the castle. "Good night, General." Then, as Van Dronk and Trusham were removed under escort, to be sent as the O'Flynn had commanded, to Gen. Schomberg's camp, he turned to Conamur with a smile, swinging the keys on his finger. "These," he said, "are for my Lady Benedetta."

Callahan: That's very queer. I ought to have a good one, I've been practicing all night.

The Baroness soon afterward gave away tiny silver flasks containing the essence of the sacred lily of Japan. That caused a craze among her friends, many of whom are the alumnae of Bryn Mawr, for the sacred lily perfume, and the Baroness has promised to obtain large quantities from Tokio. Ice Creams—Puddings—Biscuit

Made With Germless Milk

Madam, here is a question—a daily question—of prime importance to you and yours. Pray give us a moment's hearing.

There are myriads of women who have ceased the use of raw, germ-laden milk. Some have done it for safety, some for economy, some to get better food.

They are using Van Camp's—a sterile milk from pure-bred Holstein cows. They get a whole, rich milk with the whole-milk flavor. They make milk dishes with it such as milkman's milk never makes.

They have it always on hand—the cow right in the pantry. And their milk bills, since they started, have been cut in two.

All of those benefits are open to you in this rich, hygienic milk.

Thick as Thick Cream

Van Camp's Milk as it comes to you is as thick as thick cream. So thick that you add one part water for coffee, for cooking or ice cream. It is 28 per cent solids—8 per cent butter fat.

This is how we reduce it:

The milk fresh from the cow is put into a vacuum. There we evaporate two-thirds of the water, just to save shipping bulk. On account of the vacuum, the water is evaporated in a moderate heat, without scorching.

Nothing is added, as there is to condensed milk—no sugar, no starch, no preservative. Nothing is subtracted save water. When you put back that water the milk is the same—save for sterilization—as it was when it came from the cow.

Peach Ice Cream

Mix two cans of Van Camp's Milk with one can of cold water that has been boiled. Dissolve in this three-fourths pound of granulated sugar, turn into the freezer and freeze. Pare and seed one quart peaches. Mash these and mix in the frozen cream. Crank the freezer several times and let harden.

Write for our book of 131 recipes, including all sorts of ice cream.

Van Camp Packing Co. Indianapolis, Ind.

Utterly Sterile

The evaporated milk is sterilized by heat—after the can is sealed. The milk when you get it is utterly sterile. Not a germ of any kind can exist in it.

Raw milk, as you know, contains millions of germs. Van Camp's contains none at all. This sterilization is now considered essential. Careful people won't use milk without it.

Whole-Milk Flavor

Milk dishes made with Van Camp's Milk are exceedingly rich and savory. Dishes made of milkmen's milk cannot compare with them.

Some women think that this flavor is due to something artificial, but it isn't. It is simply the flavor of whole, rich milk.

Milkmen's milk separates. [illegible] butter fat rises and the solids fall. When that milk gets to the cooking it is rarely more than a half-milk.

Van Camp's cannot separate. [illegible] contains too little water. So it brings to your milk dishes the whole-milk flavor. When you learn what that means you will never cook without it.

Milk Bills Cut in Two

When Van Camp's is reduced to the usu[illegible] milk's richness the cost will figure about six cen[illegible] per quart.

The saving lies in the cost of daily delivery—the main cost of milkman's milk. We save th[illegible] huge expense.

Then Van Camp's saves waste. You have [illegible] milk left over. You never run short. You o[illegible] a can when you need it, and it keeps till you [illegible] it up.

This saving in cost and the saving in was[illegible] mean a saving of half on your milk bills.

Cost Us $100,000

The seven years spent in perfecting this mi[illegible] have cost us $100,000. The ablest Swiss an[illegible] Dutch experts have been engaged on it. All [illegible] give you an unscorched milk—changeless an[illegible] utterly sterile.

You get the best milk produced in America, [illegible] the price of the ordinary, when you get Van Camp's.

The 16-oz. cans—a full pint—costs 10 cents. The 6-oz. can costs 5 cents. Your grocer has it, shipped from our nearest dairy.

John Barleycorn, Plus Ad Wolgast, Knocks Out Clever British Fighter

Owen Moran's Showing a Brilliant One; But His Blows Lacked Steam and His Body Stamina.

By ROBERT EDGREN.
A Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, July 5.—That old 13 surely must be an unlucky number. Ask Charlie Harvey and Jimmy Johnson about it when they return from California. Harvey is manager for Owen Moran, who was knocked out in 13 rounds yesterday afternoon by Champion Al Wolgast. Johnson performs a like pleasant and profitable office for Joe Coster, who got all that was coming to him in 13 rounds at fists of Joe Rivers in Los Angeles.

Although Moran showed his old skill, according to accounts of the battle wired from San Francisco, his punch had lost its sting and his endurance was not up to the old mark. Wolgast regarded Moran's condition and ability with little respect. He publicly told the newspaper men days before the match that he would knock the once great little Englishman out with body punches. And that is just what he did.

Wolgast knew that no mere human machine could endure the abuse Moran has put his body through ever since he knocked out Battling Nelson and became an attraction in front of and behind the footlights.

Moran Going Back.

Since that day Moran, except during this last training period, has been drinking heavily and slipping away to all-night carousals. His manager, Charlie Harvey, told me a month ago that all he could hope for was to get two or three more good fights out of Moran, who was sliding down hill at a pace rivaling that once cut out by the famous Young Corbett.

On one occasion Owen, who was vaudevilling at the time, came on the stage with a lazy mind and a still unquenched thirst. Harvey was stationed in the wings on one side and Moran's wife on the other, intending to catch him when his turn was over and take him home for a night's sleep. Owen was not confused to such an extent that his generalship deserted him, for as soon as his turn was over he jumped across the footlights into the orchestra, slipped back through the musicians' exit, and, getting out through the stage door, ran to the nearest place when they dispensed liquid refreshments, not waiting to change from tights to ordinary clothes. That sort of thing soon ends the career of a fighter, no matter how fast and strong and enduring and clever he may be.

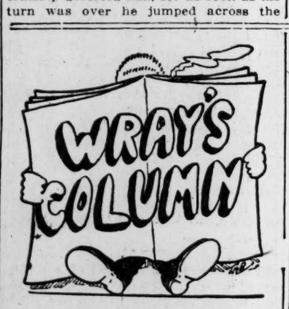

Lost His Elasticity.

Charlie Harvey took Moran away to the big, clean mountains for a long time and stayed with him and trained with him every day. Mountain air, long climbs and good plain food will do wonders. Harvey thought Moran "was back" and that his chance against Wolgast was good. But vital organs, softened and weakened by dissipation, won't "come back" in two or three months. Moran was beaten. He had the old gameness and the old skill, but not the old stamina.

In the very first round Wolgast began playing for the body. By the fifth Moran was in distress. He fought on the defensive, only occasionally going in with his usual rush. He hit cleanly and often caught Wolgast coming in and landed hard blows. They looked good, they cut and bruised the champion and closed one of his eyes; but they never knocked him down or even drove him back.

Wolgast's work was a strong contrast. He hadn't been weakened in any way. The iron was still in his muscles. Whenever he hit, the blow hurt and he hit constantly. Occasionally he hit at Moran's head, mostly in the close work, roughing and "looping" in the clinches. Most of his blows were directed at Moran's weak body.

In the thirteenth round, when Moran was staggering and trying desperately to stand the champion off, Wolgast closed in and whipped a hard right into the pit of Moran's stomach. Owen bent over. Two more rights and then a couple of left hooks on the chin as he fell and it was all over but the long tensioned count.

PUTTING IT TOO STRONG.

THAT "cheese" champion, Ad Wolgast, seems to be indebted for his fromage characteristics largely to the imagination of Battling Nelson, one-time endurance marvel of the world. For the more often Adolph fights, the more he demonstrates his right to own and defend the title and pugilistic honors so grudgingly granted him in certain quarters. His victory over Moran displays him in one more meritorious light—that of beating not only the cleverest man in the game, with the exception of McFarland, but one whose dangerous qualities were still further enhanced by the possession of the only punch that ever snapped Battling Nelson to the floor for the full count.

• • •

DOWN WITH THE "CHEESE."

THE "cheese" champion epithet was but the mumbling of the all but toothless lion, Nelson, who was reluctant to admit to himself his own waning powers. Wolgast has, since beating Nelson, done everything asked of him, save show himself clever. He never claimed he was that. He is a fighter—that lets him out. He is a bulldog, not a boxer, reversing the description of himself once given by Packey McFarland. If the term fight implies tenacity, courage, punishing power and winning, then Wolgast is a fighter and a successful champion.

Let's grate that "cheese" part.

• • •

A PANTRY AFFAIR.

WOLGAST'S real test will come Labor day, when he faces Packey McFarland, the clever man par excellence of all the opponents Wolgast expects to eliminate from the lightweight patch within the year. With height, reach, skill and weight in his favor McFarland, in the limited period of 20 rounds, seems to promise to make a tollsome journey for the champion. But Wolgast has shown his ability to get to the larder of most of his opponents ere the fight has gone much over ten rounds; and the pantry is the sensitive portion of McFarland's menage. Moran could not keep this insistent little chunk of cock-sureness at long range, clever as he was; and although McFarland seems to stand a better chance of doing so, the probabilities are that the little man from Cadillac will get to his opponent's amidship region and half break him in two. It's his customary landing place.

BOXING, NOT GRAFT, LEGAL.

NOW, if St. Louis really wants boxing, and wants to do it on the "up and up," instead of making it a one man graft with a purely money-making object, the way is clear. After the bouts of July 4, conducted under the auspices of the Mozart Gesang Verein at the Coliseum, it has been proven that boxing is legal under the Missouri law, as maintained in these columns, if the manner of conducting the shows is sufficiently circumspect. The Eagles have for years been holding boxing contests and between professionals, with absolutely no fear of interference. Naturally, the condition applies to any bonafide organization that is equally careful in the conduct of its club affairs.

The Mozart Club is only a small affair, as yet. But there is nothing under the law to prevent it from enjoying the privileges it did Tuesday, if it handles its affairs with the same regard for the law.

• • •

STERN CHASE A LONG ONE.

CLUTCHING desperately at straws for many days, the Detroit club has at last failed to keep its hand-hold on first place and Tuesday slipped back into the abyss with the rest of the American League champion chasers. Nor is there any reason to believe the team will ever get another firm grip on first place this season. It may come back for a day or so, but the inevitable has now looked the Tiger in the eye and, the chances are, got its "goat" in passing. The Athletics have the men, the hitters, the pitchers and the machine. The flingers do not appear quite as gingery as the outfit of last season; but with the club hitting better than .300 as a team, the pitchers can be a shade below the phenomenal without causing the club any worry.

BASEBALL'S HERCULES.

THE Philadelphia American club is the Wolgast of baseball. It is THE main strength club of the world, as far as sheer battering and do-something tactics go. It may lack the finesse of the one-time Cub wonders, and perhaps does not produce the runs-per-hit that were credited to the old White Sox "hitless wonders," but they can give most clubs a few handicaps and get away with the games.

Mackmen Reach Top and Richly Reward Loyal Supporters

PHILADELPHIA, July 5.

LOCAL fans last night collected thousands of dollars as a result of the Athletics wresting first place in the American League from Detroit.

The pledges were made in May, when Detroit was more than 100 points in the lead in the pennant race. Most of the wagers were made at even money, but fans who wagered that the Athletics would be in first place July 5 got as much as 2 to 1 for their money.

TENNIS VETERAN, HEAT VICTIM, IS FORCED TO QUIT

M. D. McDonald Surrenders in Central States Match at Triple A.

In spite of the blazing sun, only one player, M. D. MacDonald, the veteran Triple A star, was forced to give up in a match yesterday of the Central United States tennis tournament on the Triple A courts and take a rest.

MacDonald was playing Guy Oliver, the Country Club crack. MacDonald put up a surprisingly good game against his younger opponent, but lost the first set after a hard struggle. MacDonald rallied gamely in the second set and had Oliver 5—1 when MacDonald felt his strength leaving him and had to go to the clubhouse, forfeiting the match to Oliver.

In the afternoon MacDonald had so far recovered that he was able, with Byron Anderson, to defeat Brodix and Osthaus in the doubles, after another grueling match, 3—6, 7—5, 6—3. Roland Hoerr, Drummond Jones, Jack Cannon and the other stars all won their matches in singles, Hoerr defeating Paul Gleeson, 6—1, 6—4.

The matches scheduled for today with the results of yesterday's games follow:

LIPPERT'S FLYER AN EASY WINNER

St. Louis "Monoplane" Motor Boat Not Even Extended in Dubuque Regatta.

Hugo Lippert's Missouri III, the St. Louis "monoplane" model racing boat, must have had easy picking in the 32-foot Mississippi Valley Power Boat Association championship race at Dubuque, Io., Tuesday, as the flyer won from the six starters with an average speed of less than 30 miles an hour. The Missouri's time was 41m. 35s. for 20 miles.

Lippert is sure that his boat can make over 35 miles an hour.

He will have a chance to show what he can do in the free-for-all championship race today.

Walter Beauvais was with Lippert in the Missouri.

The Pronto III of Peoria won the 20-foot championship race, covering the 15 miles in 32m. 39s., and finished second to the Missouri in the 32-foot race. The Missouri is a 26-footer.

Over 25,000 persons witnessed the races, and 300 launches lined the course. Some of the fastest boats in the country will compete in today's races.

On Anniversary of Defeat, Jeff Says He's Business Man

CHICAGO, July 5.

JAMES J. JEFFRIES, who passed the heavyweight championship over to Jack Johnson a year ago yesterday, attended the Cub-Cincinnati game at the West Side grounds.

"Yes, things were happening to me at a great rate about this time a year ago," reflected Jeffries, when asked by a delegation of local followers if he still possessed a keen memory. "But I am through as a fighter. From now I will be a business man.

"I'm mighty sorry to hear of the recent injuries of Manager Frank Chance of the Cubs, and the fact that he insists upon sticking to the game in his present condition simply goes to show the type of man he is.

"In the parlance of the boxing world, Chance is a game fellow, and he deserves to have his ambition realized—that of bringing home another pennant for Chicago."

CAMPBELL REJOINS CRIPPLED PIRATES

Vincent Campbell, the St. Louis boy, departed at noon Wednesday to join the Pirates in Pittsburg. Campbell was a member of the Pittsburg team last season and although he was generally considered one of the "finds" of the year he decided to retire and went into business with a local brokerage firm.

When the Pirates were in St. Louis last week it was said that Manager Fred Clarke conferred with the St. Louisan. He is badly needed because Manager Clarke is out of the game at present because of being hit on the head by Southpaw Sallee; Tommy Leach has been going badly and Max Carey is playing none too well as a substitute.

Ban Johnson Is Ill.

CHICAGO, July 5.—B. B. Johnson, president of the American League, is now confined to his home in Chicago, following the attack of inflammatory rheumatism suffered at Cincinnati last week. In the absence of the league chief, Secretary Robert McRoy is directing the destinies of the major organization and will probably hold his temporary position for another week. Following the attack, Johnson was immediately brought to Chicago, and since that time has been unable to leave his home.

Thompson and O'Frien Draw.

BOZEMAN, Mont., July 5.—Maurice Thompson, Montana lightweight champion, and Mickey O'Frien of Sacramento, Cal., last night fought 10 fast rounds to a draw.

BROWNS TO FACE OLD "CY" YOUNG IN BATTLE TODAY

Southpaw Hamilton May Get a Chance to Beat the Veteran Wonder.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

CLEVELAND, O., July 5.—Had they been battling for the pennant the Browns could not have put up a better fight than they did yesterday afternoon when they defeated the Naps 4 to 2. Despite the fact he held the Naps to eight hits, Lake was really hit much harder; but the gilt-edged fielding of Schweitzer, Shotton, Laporte and Wallace and Austin killed off many a hit and cut off many a run.

Schweitzer distinguished himself by chasing almost to the center field bleachers to pull down with one hand a terrific drive off Jackson's bat, which, had it got away, would have netted Joe four bases. Shotton robbed Griggs of at least a triple, Laporte took a double away from Birmingham and Wallace's star catch in left field prevented Lajoie from making a single when he entered the game as a pinch hitter. If St. Louis would play such a game every day, Wallace's aggregation would not be in last place.

Krichell Pleased Fans.

In this game Krichell made his first Cleveland appearance and made a most favorable impression, throwing out the only two Naps who tried to steal and making two hits, one a double. He also drove in one run and scored another. Yes, sir, it was one fine day for Krichell.

The morning contest proved to be one of the most thrilling ever witnessed here, made extraordinary from the fact that Cleveland used 19 players in its efforts to win. It was Gregg, however, who stopped the Browns when they had a victory in sight and it was Gregg also that scored the winning run for the Naps on his single and Graney's double in the thirteenth. It was Gregg's thirteenth victory of the season, by the way, the best record attained by any of the American League southpaws.

Old Cy Young fairly revels in hot weather and, that being the case, Manager Stovall expects to pitch him against the Browns today. Bill James or Krapp are the second choices. Manager Wallace was not quite sure this morning whom he would send to the mound, but he declared it probably would be either Mitchell or Hamilton.

Naps Need Catchers.

Cleveland is in a bad way for catchers just now, as Shotton put Smith out of it yesterday morning, while Land is suffering with a lame shoulder. Fisher was overcome by the heat in the morning game, but will probably be ready for work again today. Easterly, who caught yesterday afternoon, did not deliver, and Stovall will scarcely use him again unless absolutely obliged to.

MARATHON CLUB MAN WINS SPRINT EVENT

Some interesting track and field events were run off at the thirty-third annual picnic of the Scottish Clans, Tuesday afternoon, at Normandy Grove, and in spite of the fact that the competitors for the handsome prizes were fewer than usual, some of the records will attest to the closeness of the competition.

Gus Arenson, a dark horse of the Marathon A. C., won the 100-yard dash from the 4-yard mark in 10 seconds from John McCawley, scratch. E. A. Garesche landed the broad jump with a leap of 21 ft., while Hans Wulff heaved the shot 42 ft. 5 in. for first place.

R. L. Probst of the Central Y. M. C. A., won both the quarter and half mile events. W. G. Shockley, a Missouri University freshman, ran away with the mile, with a handicap of 60 yards. Al Canmann of the M. A. C. was second. Cook of the Central Y. M. C. A. won the high jump at 64 inches.

MOZART CLUB TO STAGE MONTHLY BOXING CONTESTS

Police Inspection Finds No Flaw in Manner of Conducting Sparring Shows.

200 SEE JULY 4 BOUTS

Memberships Difficult to Get, and Organization Seems to Satisfy Hadley.

Chief of Detectives Allender, Capt. Hickman, two police sergeants, eight or nine detectives and probably 15 policemen were in or about the Coliseum Tuesday afternoon. They failed to find any evidence that the Mozart Gesang Verein was violating the law in any way and the boxing game in St. Louis was reopened with four bouts, three of which produced some spicy scrapping. Gov. Hadley passed the Coliseum during the progress of the bouts; but on being assured that the law was not being violated, continued on his way to a picnic in an automobile.

The club lost quite a sum of money on the show, as scarcely 200 persons witnessed the bouts. Policemen were stationed at every entrance to the Coliseum, on Jefferson avenue, Washington avenue and even back at the Locust street doors. It would have been about as easy to break into the Coliseum yesterday without a membership card as it would be to get inside the United States Treasury.

Organization Is Strict.

It was equally as difficult for anybody to get a membership card. Over 100 persons tried to join the society Monday, but were told that there was nothing doing, Saturday being the last day that applications for membership were accepted. Over 100 more boxing enthusiasts made the trip to the Coliseum and were told that there was positively no chance for them to see the bouts. Detectives and police officials watched closely at the door as each man went in and presented his membership card, had his number checked off on the books and his card punched.

Several membership cards were taken up during the afternoon by men who presented cards issued to others who, not wishing to attend themselves, had turned them over to friends. The men who presented the cards were denied admission.

The Mozart officers carried out everything they said they would do. Ben Adkins, president, opened the afternoon's meeting by calling the session to order, after which he ordered the entertainment to proceed.

The "entertainment" consisted of four boxing bouts, one wrestling match and two songs by about fifteen distinguished looking German, under the direction of a leader.

No Money for the Club.

The 200 members who attended paid $1 each for monthly dues, but that was last week. That was the only revenue the society received, as there were no special charges for the boxing bouts and no money was taken at the door or would be accepted since Saturday. It was stated the boxers received only training expenses; but the "expenses" for such a good card were heavy and the rent of the Coliseum is high. The Mozart Society also has permanent quarters at the Coliseum, and it was only through these quarters on Washington avenue that entrance could be gained to the Coliseum. The officers stated after the show that they will continue to run off boxing entertainments and were more than satisfied. The strict rules will be maintained, they declare, and they hope that the police will again co-operate with them in seeing that every provision of the law pertaining to boxing bouts are complied with.

Trendall in Fine Form.

The feature of the afternoon brought together Harry Trendall of St. Louis and Everett Gray of Edwardsville, Ill. Trendall put up the best bout of his career, and had an edge on points that would have surely entitled him to the decision if one was to have been given at the end of the six rounds. The men are lightweights. Harry Cook of the Business Men's Gymnasium refereed all of the bouts.

Trendall, from the start, bored into Gray and with hard rights to the body and hard uppercuts to the he.. seemed certain to stop Gray. Gray is built to withstand a battering and he managed to drop his own right on Trendall's wind on several occasions with considerable force. Gray was comparatively strong at the finish.

In spite of the excitement there was hardly a remark made during the afternoon, although they had not been told, as most boxing crowds are, to restrain their remarks.

The only time blood was drawn during the afternoon was in the bout between Harry Wade and Charley Woods. It was a pretty even bout, but if anything Wade had the decision, even if he did finish with a bloody nose.

Tim McCarthy and Tom Weakley, two middleweights, clashed. McCarthy had the better of the bout. Marion Woodson and Peter Sturholz also went six rounds. Woodson did what little work was worth while noting in the bout, which was more amusing than anything else. Gus Tiefenthaler and Tom Brown wrestled 10 minutes to a draw.

On and Off the Diamond.

In Nunamaker, 21, the Boston Americans have the greatest young catcher of the year.

Speaking of his teammates, Lefty Leifield of the Pirates justly says: "Ordinarily I am opposed to protests, and like the American League plan of playing the games on the diamond and not in a board meeting, but one club cannot afford to be a good sport, overlooking chances to grab a game on a technicality, when all the other teams take what they can get. Cincinnati once protested on a flimsy technicality and Chicago robbed us of a hard-earned game on Decoration day, so why should not we retaliate?"

"The old fellows play the game according to Hoyle, but they are like the old gambler—they take no chances—while the youngsters, who are full of ambition, take any old chance in order to make a showing. There are many of the cast-offs from the big leagues coming into the association, and while I do not want to say a word against their ability, I believe it would be better if the managers catered a little more to the youngsters and gave them a chance to show their worth."

Horace Fogel has a vivid imagination. He says: "I just made the rounds of the National League and offered $75,000 for a pitcher and outfielder."

Manager Chance's playing days are probably over.

Isn't Billy Klem a belligerent fellow? Quarreled with two women at Latonia. They requested him to remove his massive feet from the runway. He did so with such deliberation that it aroused their ire. To retaliate the ladies called a "copper" and made Billy put on his coat. The affair will not be reported to President Lynch.

As a second baseman Neal Ball is playing a wonderfully improved game for Cleveland. Says he:

"Well, you see, I am getting a chance now. Stovall doesn't yank me out in pinches as I used to be yanked out. It discourages a player to be allowed to bat only when there is nothing much at stake."

Boston isn't winning any more games with Kling catching than it did with Graham doing the receiving, yet the New York manager says:

"Only those on the inside know what a valuable man Kling is. Even if he isn't as fast as he was in his younger days, his knowledge and his ability to break up the attack of the opponents will be a blow to Chicago. Now that Kling is away from the Cubs I will be satisfied if we returned home a few games out of first place, and then watch how we will pull away from the others."

The National League pennant fight will make a barrel of money for the contending clubs. No winner is in sight.

Some scribes insist that Chicago did not get the best of the deal with Boston. Wilbur Good got four hits yesterday, one triple and one double scored four runs and stole a base. Has anybody heard of Kling or Kaiser performing any such feats recently?—Philadelphia Press.

St. Louis must now be considered when the pennant talk is rife. Bresnahan's men are in the first division, only four games behind the Giants. And at the rate they have been going they will soon be making the Giants and Phillies look backward with alarm.

REFEREE TAKES CUP RACE FROM MOUND CITY MEN

Winners of Stifel Barge Race Disqualified After Official Thinks It Over.

After the Mound City crew had won the Senior Stifel Cup barge race on the Mississippi River Tuesday, Referee Teddy Umbright of the Central Rowing Club disqualified the winners for getting out of their course and gave the Centrals' barge the race. This, if allowed, will make three victories for the Centrals and will entitle the club to hold the cup permanently.

The Mound Citys intend to protest Umbright's decision and will award medals to the Mound City oarsmen for finishing first.

As far as the cup goes, it seems that the Centrals have the whip hand, just as the Mound Citys did several weeks ago.

The Centrals won a river race but were disqualified by Referee Charles Amann of the Mound Citys because, while in the lead, the Central No. 2 had touched their No. 1 crew.

Other Foul Overlooked.

The Westerns and St. Louis had clashed and a St. Louis oar was broken, but neither crew was disqualified. Wagers, including some of Umbright's money, was held by President Hofer of the Mound Citys. There was a row over the disqualification, also over the bets, the Centrals claiming that they had bet on the way the crews crossed the line. Hofer decided otherwise and paid off on the Mound Citys.

There was quite a bit of money invested yesterday, and Umbright's decision caused another storm of protest. The Mound Citys crossed the finish line at the Central Rowing Club about a length ahead of the Centrals. The Westerns were third.

HYDE PARKS GET ANOTHER CHANCE

They Must Defeat Millers Next Sunday to Have Show for Pennant.

The Hyde Parks, champions of the Trolley League for two years, lost their third game of the season yesterday to the Belleville team at Belleville, Ill., 4 to 3, an don the result of the game between the Hyde Parks and Millers, to be played at South End Park Sunday, will depend whether or not the Millers, which club has not lost a game, will have a walkover for the championship.

The Millers deefated the Oechsners yesterday, 19 to 10, at South End Park, while the Lynches won from the Moberly team, 8 to 5. Trolley League baseball is certainly not proving a paying proposition this season, as the Hyde Parks received only $54 for their share of the gate receipts at Belleville yesterday, while the team's weekly salary list amounts to over $100.

The Millers-Hyde Parks game Sunday is expected to draw a good crowd, as there is keen rivalry between the two teams. The Hyde Parks are still second in the league standing.

JULY 4 PROVED A BIG DAY FOR MACK AND DOOIN

Both Philadelphia Teams Hop Into the Lead in Their Respective League Races.

TIGHT ONE IN NATIONAL

Any One of First Five Teams Has an Equal Chance to Capture Tom Lynch's Flag.

With the seasons in the two big leagues nearing the half-way mark, some of the keenest competition in baseball is promised for the sprint from now until October to decide the representatives of the National and American leagues in the world's champions...p series.

July 4 marked a big day in the baseball world. It saw a change in the leadership in both organizations. Peculiarly strange about the shift in the standings is the fact that both Philadelphia teams assumed the leadership in the two leagues.

For the first time this season the world's champion Athletics jumped to the fore in the American League marathon. They won a double-header from the New York Yankees and crowded the Detroit Tigers to second position. It was the first time this season that the Junglemen have relinquished their hold on the American League lead.

Started With Big Advantage.

The Tigers started out at the beginning of the season like whirlwinds. They had piled up a lead that seemed almost impossible to overcome. On the other hand Connie Mack's pitchers went wrong for several weeks and during that time his team rested in last position, even below the weak Browns. However, the Athletics have made a game fight and now that they are on top, it seems that it will be a difficult matter to shake them.

It seems a fight from now on between the Athletics and Tigers, although the Chicago White Sox and New York Yankees are not altogether out of it. Still, these teams do not appear in the same class with the Philadelphians and Detroiters and it will be a fight between the sluggers and pitchers.

The National League is having probably the greatest fight in its history. The first five clubs are closely bunched and the "breaks" will enable any one of them to land on top next October if the present gait continues. The Philadelphia Quakers sprung a surprise Tuesday by jumping into the lead, replacing the Giants, who dropped to third place as the result of losing a double-header to the men of Dooin. It was a grand opportunity for the Chicago Cubs to regain the leadership, but Chance's men were only able to win one game and tie another with the Cincinnati Reds.

Cardinals Here to Stay.

The Cardinals did very nicely, thank you, in the double-header with the Pirates. They broke even and still cling to fourth position. They are in the heat of the fight for the flag. At noon Wednesday the Bresnahan tribe was only four games out of first place, not a very big handicap to overcome.

The race in the National League is so close that almost daily a new leader may be noted. While it is anybody's fight, the Giants have most admirers for the honors. The Quakers have shown that their early season spurt was no flash in the pan by coming back and regaining the lead.

The Cubs are badly crippled, but have proved their gameness by sticking with the leaders. The fact that Manager Chance will have to remain out of the game the remainder of the season is a big blow to the National League champions.

SHERIDAN'S RECORD CAN'T BE ACCEPTED

NEW YORK, July 5.—Martin B. Sheridan made a new record with the discus, yesterday afternoon, at the athletic carnival held by the city at McCarren Park, in Brooklyn. He hurled the saucer-shaped missile 141 ft. 1½ in., but as it was not made according to all the A. A. U. rules it will probably not be accepted. In this event B. Gist of the Seattle Athletic Club finished second.

St. Louis Player Dies.

MONTGOMERY CITY, Mo., July 5.—Walter Weber, 24 years of age, who resided with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Weber, at 4235 North Fourteenth street, St. Louis, first baseman for the Broderick-Bascom baseball team of St. Louis, died here yesterday as the result of sunstroke. After playing Sunday and Monday, Weber suddenly collapsed at the Hanover Hotel and died shortly after a doctor had been summoned. Weber's father arrived here this morning to bring the body to St. Louis.

Elmer Flick Quits Baseball.

TOLEDO, O., July 5.—President Armour of Toledo, announces that Elmer Flick, right fielder, has quit baseball to go into business in Cleveland. Flick told members of the team that he intended quitting. He left for Cleveland last night.

Stove, Range and Furnace Repairs. A. G. Brauer Supply Co., 316 N. Third.

Help! Ty Cobb is slipping! After making at least one hit in every one of his last forty games, T. Raymond failed to pole a safety off Ed Walsh in Tuesday's morning game. The Tigers lost.

Hap Myers, a Brownie for a week this spring, is doing first base duty for the Red Sox. Williams, who was considered the Boston first baseman, has returned to catching.

Johnson Signs for Bout.

CHICAGO, July 5.—Jack Johnson, heavyweight champion pugilist, has signed articles to fight Patrick Curran to a finish in Dublin, according to a dispatch from London. The date will be decided today.

FIVE PERFECT SCORES IN RELIABILITY RUN

Five cars finished with perfect scores out of 13 starters in the Missouri Automobile Association's 104.1 mile reliability run over St. Louis County roads yesterday. An average speed of close to 35 miles an hour was maintained. Three trucks out of seven starters had perfect scores.

The heat caused many men who had intended to start to withdraw from the race. The fact that such fast speed was maintained in spite of the excessive heat speaks well for the endurance of the drivers as well as the machines. The scores of the pleasure vehicle class of automobiles follow:

CAR AND DRIVER.	Score.
Kline, Ashley Grey	Perfect
Selden, H. B. Beguelin	Perfect
Cadillac, Dan Wandell	Perfect

Butcher to Join Naps.

JOHN EVERS IS WANTED AT YALE

Chicago Second Baseman Being Sought to Coach Old Eli Baseball Team.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., July 5.—It is generally believed here that a big upheaval is impending in Yale athletics. The belief is quite as general that an upheaval is necessary. Yale has lost every series in the four major sports this year, except football, and in this its team failed to defeat Harvard, and was defeated by Brown and West Point.

For the first time the track team was defeated by Princeton, the baseball nine lost both the Harvard and Princeton series, and the crew was defeated by every Eastern university of any importance on the water, except Columbia.

It is understood that two of the incidents of the reforms will be the fight that two of the professional coaches—John Kennedy of the crew and Billy Lush of the baseball nine—must make for their places. Several different movements are on foot to displace Kennedy, and at least one to displace Lush. A faction of former Yale players wish to see Johnny Evers of Chicago become the baseball coach. Another attack, this on both Lush and Kennedy, is headed by a faction composed of faculty members and old players. They would have professional coaches abolished altogether.

Bob Cook, the former Yale rowing coach and captain, is at the head of an attempt to displace Kennedy. Cook wants to bring back Jim Rodgers, the former Yale oarsman and football captain, as head rowing coach. Another attempt to oust Kennedy is headed by Alfred Cowles of Chicago, captain of the 'varsity '86 crew.

The proposed reforms go farther, however, than the replacing of two or three professional coaches in the university. Among the things contemplated is a system of athletic control which shall not leave the captains supreme.

Forbes Draws With Jap.

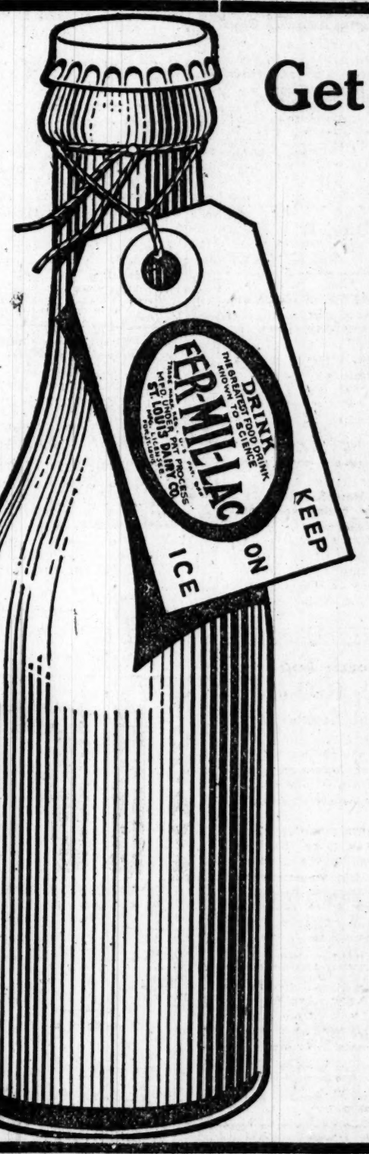

McALESTER, Ok., July 5.—Although outweighed almost 10 pounds, Young Togo, a Jap, gave Harry Forbes of Chicago a hard 15-round fight here yesterday, the bout resulting in a draw decision. Togo cut a gash two inches long over Forbes' left eye. Forbes was the cleverer, but the Jap was strong and aggressive.

North Ends to File Protest.

The North End Rowing Club will hold a meeting Thursday night, after which a protest will be filed with the Southwestern Amateur Rowing Association to the effect that the North Ends won the junior barge race in the regatta last Saturday. As it stands at present, the North Ends of St. Louis are the winners.

It is probable that the North Ends will send the club's junior barge to Peoria for the Central United States regatta.

Get This "Friendly Germ" In Your System

Let us tell you now what is in FER-MIL-LAC, the greatest summer drink in existence.

We send to Paris for cultures of a Bulgarian germ and this germ is part of our wonderful drink. It was discovered by Professor Metchnikoff of the Pasteur Institute of Paris. He found it in the Bulgarian's chief food and he was investigating that food because of the marvelous longevity of the people who ate it.

He at once saw that this germ did this:

It attacked all the disease germs that people carried around in their bodies. It neutralized the effect of their poisons so those poisons were kept from the blood. Many poisons that break down "life cells" were thus stopped and the people in consequence lived that much longer.

It is these poisons that cause much of American sickness—that make people feel tired and lazy in summer—that hinder their work and make them ill-tempered and unhappy. It is these poisons that Fer-Mil-Lac kills and that's why it's such a great summer drink.

Made From Whole Milk. A New Flavor

We make this drink from the richest whole milk containing all of the solids and butter fats. But we change the flavor and make the drink absolutely digestible. Those who don't like milk or who cannot digest it will find that they'll like and can digest Fer-Mil-Lac thus getting all of milk's exceptional food value.

Mother's no longer fight to get children to take milk. They take it in this form with healthy zest.

Don't Take a Substitute Get the Genuine

Because Fer-Mil-Lac is a great success. Substitutes are now offered for Fer-Mil-Lac, but you don't want them if you want the Fer-Mil-Lac benefits.

These imitations may be of the same color and of the same consistency. They may sell at a lower price. But they are not the same in the formula that gives you the value. We control it exclusively. There is no other drink just like Fer-Mil-Lac, so don't take any other.

You can get the original at soda fountains, cafes, buffets, hotels and clubs. It is served in individual bottles fresh off the ice, pure and good.

There was never a drink for hot weather that tasted so good and was so good for you. Try it today. Try it a week. Drink it three times a day. At the end of that week note how much better you feel—how you forget all about the hot weather though you keep up a winter pace at work

Lost and Found

IF YOU LOSE ANYTHING, and will advertise it here, you will surely recover it if found by an honest person. A 3-time ad seldom fails. Remarkable recoveries are brought about every day through this column. Your druggist our agent.
IF YOU FIND ANYTHING, bring it to the Post-Dispatch Lost and Found Bureau, 210-212 North Broadway. Get a claim check. Advertise the article. Reclaim it if the owner does not.
THE LAW—People who find lost articles are interested in knowing that the State Law (Sections 8265 and 8273, R. S., 1909) is strict in requiring them to seek the owners through advertisement and otherwise, and that a failure to do so, if same can be proven, involves a severe penalty.

THROW INKSTAND, SHOUTS A LAWYER AT CAMORRA TRIAL

Accused and Informer Get Into Dispute, Counsel Advises Harsh Measures.

VITERBO, Italy, July 5.—Personal feeling flared up at the Camorrists' trial again today and provided excitement for the spectators. It came about when Gennaro Abbatemaggio, the informer, was confronted by a witness for the defense named D. I. Martire.

Martire had testified that he knew Luigi Arena in prison and could affirm that the latter had never participated in the burglary which the State alleges led to Cuoccolo's death.

Following this testimony Martire was brought face to face with Abbatemaggio and angry exchanges followed. All of the prisoners, led by Enrico Alfano, joined the witness in denouncing the former. There was great confusion, to which Vechani, one of the lawyers for the defense, added by encouraging his clients in their demonstration.

"If Abbatemaggio continues his provocative attitude," cried the lawyer, "thrown an ink stand at his head."

To this Abbatemaggio replied

"If I am attacked, I will defend myself and I will affirm my denunciation even should my tongue be cut out."

Martire said that Marshal Capuzziti of the caribineers had offered him a reward if he would support the accusations of Abbatemaggio.

KANSAS WOMEN SHOW THE MEN REAL POLITICS

Old Party Leaders Once Smiled at Idea of Petticoat Campaign, but Not Now.

ORGANIZATION IS A MODEL

From Central State Body It Reaches Down to the School District Captain.

LEAVENWORTH, Kan., July 5.—Old politicians who smiled when the Legislature passed the act submitting the suffrage question to a vote in Kansas and spoke with toleration of the efforts of the women to attain equal political rights, are becoming alarmed now and are realizing that they are going to have a stiff fight to keep the women from winning. The way the women are going about the work of perfecting an organization is a continual marvel to the old politicians and more than one of them has admitted that he didn't believe it was possible.

The politicians are against suffrage because they fear that when the women vote the little power left to them after the primary law was passed will be swept away. This was strongly hinted when the women began to vote in municipal and school elections years ago. The so-called liberal element also is against suffrage because of a fear that when the women can vote there never will be a chance to resubmit the prohibitory law, for which an organization now is at work in Kansas. Neither the politicians nor the liberals had any doubts that they could defeat suffrage at the polls in November, 1912, but doubt is here to stay.

Organization Complete in Detail.

The women are carrying the organization into every home in the State. Nothing is being done hurriedly. They have taken "Slow but sure" for their motto and nothing is being attempted without a certainty that it can be carried out. The general organization already has been perfected and the county organizations are well under way. In some counties the work of organizing the townships and city wards already has begun.

The organization plan of the suffrage movement provides for a general state organization in each county. Under the county organization will be township and ward organizations and these again will be divided into block and school district committees, to that the organization is carried into practically every home in the State.

Neither of the old political parties in the State ever has had anything that approached it for completeness. In organizing the counties and cities, mass conventions are held. These conventions appoint vice-presidents for each ward or township, whose duty it is to call a meeting in her district, organize and appoint ward and block or township and school district captains. These captains will pool their districts and ultimately there will be turned into the State committee a report upon how every voter in Kansas stands on the suffrage question.

Papers Treat Cause With Dignity.

Later on, when the last precinct is organized, the women will begin both by public meetings and by personal appeals to convert voters opposing the constitutional amendment. In the meantime the women are overlooking to get arguments favorable to suffrage into the newspapers and the leaders are surprised at the large number of papers which have come out actively in support of their cause. They expected jibes and jeers, but instead the newspapers, even those most strongly opposed to suffrage, have been treating them with market courtesy.

"If these women were jeered at," an old politician remarked, "they would win in a walk and for that reason we have to be mighty nice to them. If they succeed in getting a campaign fund, I'm afraid it is all off with us anyway. It is a source of continual surprise to me to see the political sagacity they exhibit. Strong as I am against suffrage, I have to admire their business-like way of going after what they want. If the Populists had exhibited half as much sense 20 years ago they would have swept every state west of the Alleghenies.

Women Are Old Politicians.

As a matter of fact, a large number of the women who now are interested in the suffrage organization were identified with the Populist party and many of the ideas being acted upon by the women are theirs. Numbers of others were identified with the suffrage campaign of 1896.

Because of their experience in that campaign, most of these old leaders were elected officers in the State Association. The officers of the association are:

President, Mrs. W. A. Johnson, Topeka; first vice-president, Mrs. W. R. Stubbs, Lawrence; second vice-president, Mrs. Cora Wellhouse Bullard, Tonganoxie; secretary, Miss Helen Eacker, Lawrence; treasurer, Mrs. S. A. Thurston, Topeka; auditor, Mrs. W. A. White, Emporia. The congressional district vice-presidents are: First District, Mrs. Cora W. Bullard, Tonganoxie; Second District, Mrs. Genevieve Chalkey, Lawrence; Third District, Mrs. P. H. Albright, Winfield; Fourth District, Mrs. L. C. Wooster, Emporia; Fifth District, Mrs. Mattie Kimball, Manhattan; Sixth District, Mrs. Anna C. Waite, Lincoln; Seventh District, Mrs. W. Y. Morgan, Hutchinson; Eighth District, Mrs. Ann Garrett, Wichita.

$100,000 Holiday Fire in Nebraska.

NEW CASTLE, Neb., July 5.—The business portion of New Castle was almost completely wiped out by a Fourth of July fire, entailing a loss of $100,000. The blaze started in the living apartments of Tom Mace, over a general store, presumably from a firecracker.

Small Light Helmet Is Newest Hat for Ladies

A CRAZE in favor of simplicity in hats is being brought on by the prospect of a hot summer in London. The new idea, a white helmet for ladies, which is being shown in the English capital, should appeal to all those who put comfort before display. An added advantage is that the hat requires no hat pins, but fits onto the head.

While there may be differences of opinion on the point of its beauty, the helmet is light and cool.

DELIRIOUS AFTER A SIX-HOUR SWIM

Salesman Overcome Soon After Quitting Mississippi River at Alton.

Overcome by the heat when swimming and tortured by sunburn, S. J. Icove, a New York traveling salesman, is in a serious condition at the Illini Hotel in Alton.

Icove visited Alton with a line of samples, and after calling on several customers he went swimming in the Mississippi River, near the Alton bridge. He boasted that he was at home in the water and said swimming was the only way to cool off on a hot day.

With only short intervals of rest he remained in the water nearly six hours. For the greater part of that time, although most of his body was immersed in cooling water, his head, back and arms were exposed to the sun. He collapsed shortly after leaving the water and for several hours he was delirious.

AXLE SETS CAR ON FIRE

Garden Hose Subdues Blaze as Passengers Flee.

Passengers hurriedly fled from a westbound Page car at Page and Union boulevards when a hot axle caused it to catch fire at 8:30 p. m., Tuesday.

Police Lieut. Tierney coupled a garden hose to a valve in front of the Page Boulevard Station and extinguished the fire after it had burned through the floor and caused $25 damage. No one was injured.

NAT TELLS HOW MAXINE USED HIM AS SOCIAL LADDER

After He Got "Noble Sapheads" Started to English Estate, Goodwin Was Left to Butler.

HE WAS STUNG BY A DUKE

Walking in Gallery With Friend, the Butler, Heard Wife Say "One Must Marry Some One."

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., July 5.—Nat Goodwin celebrated Independence day by discussing Maxine Elliot, his "wife No. 3," and giving out a part of his book about his matrimonial experiences, especially while trying to break into English society. Part of it follows:

"Her's was the ambition of a Cleopatra. She used me as a ladder to reach her goal and found her crowning glory in the blinding glare of a myriad of incandescent lights that spelled her name over the portals of a New York theater.

"She was one of the cleverest women I ever met. Her dignity was that of a Joan of Arc; her demeanor Nero-like in its assertive qualities, and yet with channels of emotion that manifested womanhood in the truest sense of the word.

"During the early days at Jackwood, my English home, when I was busily engaged in hiring guests to come and partake of my board and rooms (I mean professional diners-out) I found great difficulty in securing patrons. I had plenty at my command, as far as professional friends and visiting Americans were concerned, but the fair Maxine had the English bee in her American bonnet and insisted we must try and get together some of the impecunious nobility and a few army men as guests.

"I knew of no one who represented these particular branches, and had no desire to, but being under her hypnotic influence, I sought a woman, the wife of a friend of mine, an American mining man, who, I discovered, knew all the swagger members of the guards—one very particular one—and through her influences the 'saphead' was permitted to visit our humble home from Saturday to Monday. He came accompanied by one of the present dukes of England (whose father, by the way, died owing me a paltry $2000 borrowed in a racecourse trip to Deauville).

"They all came down this particular Saturday in conjunction with Mme. Melba and Haddon Chalmers.

"We had a lovely time, that is, they did, as Maxine insisted on my entertaining the guests between courses with my supposedly funny stories. Generally, after the telling of each, which occupied some little time, my portion of the feast was either cold or confiscated by the butler. Very little attention was paid me, only when anecdotes and the first of every month when the bills became due.

"However, this particular evening the guests sauntered into the drawing room, expecting to hear Melba sing. She didn't even talk, and the party, in young couples of two sauntered through the house and inspected the grounds. I, being on particularly good terms with the butler, selected him for my companion and we quietly strolled through the upper rose terrace, discussing the menu that would appeal to the next influx of England's dilettante. By this time all my American friends were barred, as Maxine considered them extremely common.

"The butler and I were figuring out the expense of the past month as the pale moon cast its rays over my book of memoranda, when we stopped before an open window of the drawing room to figure.

"Quite casually I heard this remark:

"'How could you possibly have married such a vulgar little person.'

"I, being terribly self-conscious at all times, said to my butler:

"'Louis, that's me that chocolate soldier is referring to; listen and we'll have a warrior's opinion of a thespian.'"

"I heard the following dialogue:

"She: 'Do you think him vulgar?'

"He: 'Not necessarily vulgar, but an awful accent.'

"She: 'Well, no one ever accused him of an American accent. He was educated in Boston. Don't you think him rather amusing?'

He: In what way?

She: By way of anecdotes and funny stories.

He: Were these stories he told at dinner supposed to be funny?

She: Of course! Didn't you hear the guests laugh?

He: Yes, so I did, but simply in a spirit of compliment. Is he supposed to be a comic man in your company?

She: Extremely so.

He: Really?

She: And he talks remarkably well.

He: Did he talk remarkably well tonight?

She: I thought so.

He: Well, maybe, but I was deafened by your beauty. I saw nothing but those beauteous eyes of yours, my dear Mrs. Goodwin, and everything else was a blank. Really, I—

She: Now don't pay me silly compliments, Lord A——; it isn't necessary.

He: I beg your pardon, but please tell me, how did you happen to marry that funny little man?

She: Now, don't ask impertinent questions; one has to get married, and really when he talks he says something.

He: Does he really.

"The butler and I quietly resumed our stroll. Some time after I met this Grenadier. I talked and said something. (My publisher refuses to print it.)

"Jackwood proved a lovely summer abode for me. It cost me $50,000 to get it, $15,000 a year to keep it up. We were there about ten weeks every season, and it cost me $25,000 to get rid of it. The comic little man did one thing, however. He launched his third wife on the waves of English society, and they repaid him by stealing her from him. Did they get a bargain? I wonder."

Post-Dispatch's Complete Daily Record of Markets and Finance

STOCKS DECLINE ON REPORTS OF CROP DAMAGE

Liquidation Resumed in Wall Street, With Substantial Recessions in Leading Shares.

NEW YORK, July 5, 3 P. M.—The market closed at practically the low point of the day. Union Pacific touched 185, or ½ point below the opening. Reading, Steel and Canadian followed the downward tendency.

Continuance of the drouth in the Southwest, accompanied by reports of sensational damage to corn, oats and other cereals, caused weakness in the stock market today.

Prices broke sharply at first, but the market soon grew steadier and recovered part of its loss. The Moroccan situation, which was a bearish factor on Monday, was ignored today, and there was no recurrence of pressure on this market from abroad. The decline of 4 points in Canadian Pacific and of lesser amounts in the Erie issues was explained as being due to the official denial by the head of the Canadian line that it was to obtain control of the Erie recoveries from the low level became more extended during the second hour, Canadian Pacific rallying 1½ and other stock at ½ to ¾. Activity, however, gradually diminished as the rise proceeded. Most of the buying seemed to originate on the floor and represented short covering to a large degree. Bonds were easier.

The low prices of the first hour were quite generally established in the initial dealings, subsequent selling being scattered and of no general effect on prices. Supporting orders caused slight recoveries, but speculation grew dull on the rally. Bull operations were hampered by the strong advance in grain prices on the unfavorable weather conditions.

Sir Thomas Shaughnessy is out in a statement denying that Canadian Pacific or any of its allied lines has negotiated for control of or an interest in or working arrangements with the Erie System. Erie issues have been boomed recently on these reports, the common showing a substantial gain in the past few weeks.

The international conference of steel makers, at which representatives of the United States Steel Corporation will be present, begins at Brussels today.

A special meeting of Maine Central stockholders is scheduled to be held at Portland.

COTTON MARKET SLIGHTLY HIGHER

NEW YORK, July 5.—The cotton market opened firm at an advance of 4 to 10 points on covering and aggressive bull support. Cables were a little lower than due, but were not sufficiently out of line to suggest any material weakness abroad, and attention here was centered on the continued dry weather in the Southwest. As the market had failed to weaken as a result of the high July condition, there were naturally expectations of a sharp advance should drouthy conditions continue in the Southwest, and while the advance here met considerable opposition from Wall street and continental sources, old crop positions worked up to a net gain of 6@10 points, while the new crop sold about 17 to 19 points net higher before the end of the first hour.

The Western belt forecast for unsettled weather and possible showers in the extreme eastern part of Texas was followed by increased offerings, and prices reacted 6 or 8 points from the best, but sellers were not aggressive enough to follow the market down and the tone was steady at midday, with active months ruling about 6 to 14 points net higher.

Spot quiet; middling uplands, 14.70c nominal. Estimated receipts at the ports today, 300 bales, against 2544 last week and 5082 last year. For the week, 10,000 bales, against 10,502 last week and 22,084 last year. Today's receipts at New Orleans, one bale, against 789 last year.

POWERS TO SETTLE STATUS OF MOROCCO

Invitation Comes From Germany, Allaying Danger of International Break.

LONDON, July 5.—Danger of international complications over the Agadir incident was removed for the present at least by an agreement reached by the powers today to hold "conversations" over Morocco. The powers concerned are France, Germany, Great Britain, Spain and Russia, and the proposal for pourparliers comes from Germany.

There is no question for the moment of another Algeciras conference, but it is recognized that the impending "conversations" are likely to settle definitely the status of the Arab empire, which, standing at the gateway of Europe, has been constantly regarded as a possible cause of international difficulties.

Any important decision of the powers, such as plans for the partition of Morocco, naturally would have to be submitted to the signatories of the Algeciras act, including the United States, which country is understood to be interested in the disposition of the southwestern coast of Morocco on account of its nearness to South America.

WOMAN HANGS SELF IN A HISTORIC FORT

Caretaker at Fort Pitt Blockhouse Grieved at What She Called Desecration of Fourth.

PITTSBURG, Pa., July 5.—When 15-year-old Mary Golden broke into the old Fort Pitt blockhouse where her mother was caretaker, she found her hanging from one of the roof supports of the historic structure. Mrs. Golden was a descendant of a revolutionary soldier. An American flag was wrapped about the body.

Mrs. Golden was a religious woman and intensely patriotic. Of late years she had grieved because, she said, "the Fourth of July that was set aside to honor our forefathers and give thanks for [illegible] is desecrated every y[illegible]."

Taking her daughter by the hand she said: "Mary, you might as well die with me." This alarmed the child and caused her to flee from the fort. Hesitating as to whether her mother was in earnest, Mary went a long distance up the Duquesne Heights to get relatives, rather than call in strangers. They returned too late.

ST. LOUIS MONEY MARKET.

Rates for time funds are somewhat steadier than previously this month, due, no doubt, to the passing of the midyear financial adjustment period. Quotations are 4½ to 5 per cent for three and four months datings, and the transactions are now around to the point where business is being done at the asked figures. There is little mercantile paper coming on the market, and the better known credits are easily and eagerly taken by the banks at 4½ per cent. None of the maturities run beyond October, however.

SOCIALISTS WANT A SUCCESSOR TO SCHUTZ

Mayor Delays Action Because Special Election Would Cost $60,000.

William M. Brandt, secretary of the Socialist party of St. Louis, has written to Mayor Kreismann and President Gundlach of the Council asking why a special election has not been called to fill the vacancy in the Council caused by the resignation, last March, of Councilman William C. Schutz.

The reason is that it costs between $60,000 and $70,000 to hold a special election and President Gundlach and the Mayor want to save that money by having a new Councilman chosen when another election is being held.

The law is that when a vacancy occurs the President of the Council must notify the Mayor who, within five days after being notified, must issue a proclamation for an election to be held within from twenty to thirty days.

An election is to be held Nov. 7 to vote on the additional bond issue for the municipal bridge. President Gundlach plans to notify the Mayor just in time for him to proclaim an election for Councilman to be held at the same time.

SAFE BLOWERS WRECK OFFICE, GET 200 STAMPS

Explosion of Dynamite Scatters Money Over Floor and It Is Overlooked.

Burglars attracted no attention when they blew open the safe and wrecked the front end of the building at 928 and 930 North Second street Tuesday evening. Persons living in the neighborhood attributed the noise of the explosion to a Fourth of July celebration.

The robbers were evidently in a hurry to get away as they overlooked $70 and 300 two-cent stamps. The building is occupied by the Joplin Mercantile Co.

Probationary Patrolman Huepschen discovered the robbery when he passed the building at 6 p. m. He had tried the front doors an hour before and they were securely fastened. At 6 p. m. he found the front of the building lying in the street. Inside the wrecked furniture was strewn about and the safe was a mass of twisted steel.

The robbers got away with about 200 postage stamps.

3 NATIONS FORMING MOROCCAN POLICY

France, England and Russia Prepare to Speak as to Germany's Latest Move.

PARIS, July 5.—Conversations are still going on between France, England and Russia relative to France's response to the intervention of Germany in Morocco.

Should a reply be forwarded it probably would not be before Saturday, when President Fallieres and Foreign Minister de Selves are to return from their visit to Holland.

A majority of the press prints daily the question "What does Germany want?"

Some newspapers, like the Figaro, criticise the French Government for a lack of decision in defending the interest of [illegible]e and accuse the Cabinet of leaning too heavily on the initiative of England.

Chinese Revolutionists Active.

SEATTLE, Wash., July 5.—Chinese and Japanese papers brought here by the steamer Panama Maru are full of discussion concerning the revolution in China with predictions of the impending downfall of the Prime Minister, Prince Ching, leader of the reactionary element.

Killed by Runaway Team.

PEORIA, Ill., July 5.—While trying to control a runaway team Abraham Gomes and his son, Charles Gomes, were thrown down a 60-foot embankment on the Po[illegible]stown road near here. The Elder Gomes was instantly killed and his son received injuries from which he will die.

16-HOUR LAW KEEPS 10,000 OUT OF HOMES

Los Angeles Excursionists Forced to Sleep on Beach When Trains Are Stopped.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., July 5.—Ten thousand Fourth of July holiday makers slept on the sands of the various beach resorts last night because the law limiting railroad men to 16 working hours prevented the suburban lines from bringing them home. Fully half of the marooned throng were women and girls, garbed in the flimsiest of seaside summer costumes and the cold night breezes wrought havoc with their nerves and patience.

Cries of anger arose at 1:15 this morning when the trainmen announced that no more cars would be run. The hotels and lodging houses were quickly filled and the overflow spent a miserable night on the sands.

At 4 o'clock this morning extra crews were obtained and cars were rushed to the beaches to the rescue.

STATE HIGHWAY MEETING POSTPONED

Governor to Set Later Date, So Prospective Routes Can Be Better Investigated.

JEFFERSON CITY, July 5.—Gov. Hadley announced today that the meeting of the State Board of Agriculture to take up and consider the "Across the State highway" between St. Louis and Kansas City, would be postponed until the first week in August. The meeting will be here.

The date previously named was July 28. A number of the members of the board wrote to the Governor suggesting a later date for various reasons, the main one being that more time will be afforded for investigating the various routes suggested. Either Aug. 2 or 3 will be named.

The Governor, the State Highway Engineer and a committee of seven from the State Board of Agriculture will leave St. Louis the morning of July 17 and investigate all three of the proposed routes and submit their findings to the meeting held here in August.

SHOT WOUNDS ONE AND KILLS ANOTHER

Bullet Passes Through Man's Body and His Companion Is Hit; Assailant Escapes.

MUSKOGEE, Ok., July 5.—A bullet that passed through the body of Blue Ghormley struck and instantly killed Perry Bildad at Tahlequah last night.

Ghormley and Bildad and the latter's wife and children were drinking lemonade at a stand in the old Capitol Square when three shots were fired. Two struck Ghormley, one going through his body and killing Bildad. Ghormley is badly wounded.

No one in the crowd could identify the person who fired the shots.

CONVICTS OBSERVE 4TH

SAN QUENTIN, Cal., July 5.—The convicts in the State penitentiary observed July 4, the principal attraction being a minstrel and vaudeville staged entirely by inmates of the penitentiary.

One of the vaudeville features was a sketch written by Abraham Reuf, former political magnate of San Francisco, and now serving a 14-year term for bribery.

NATIVE CATTLE—The supply in this division today proved larger than anticipated, aggregating 7500 head. Steers were very abundant and there were more of the medium grades on hand than the trade really needed. Market was slow getting under way and the tendency was weaker from the start. Sellers got up to $6.55 for choice steers. Top heifers brought $6.25 and cows and bulls of the best kind sold at $5. There was no change in the veal calf market and it was a quiet day in the stocker and feeder trade.

FREIGHT RATE COMPLAINT.

WASHINGTON, July 5.—A complaint affecting the freight rates on crude petroleum from Western points to Eastern destinations was filed today with the Interstate Commerce Commission. The Missouri, Kansas & Texas Railway and other carriers now are exacting a rate of 27 cents a hundred pounds on crude petroleum from Coffeyville, Kan., to Joliet, Ill., on eastbound shipments and the National Refining Co. of Cleveland, an independent concern, alleges the rate should not be more than 18 cents.

LONDON STOCKS WEAK.

LONDON, July 5.—The market for American securities opened easy and ruled quiet, awaiting the reopening of the New York Stock Exchange.

In the afternoon American securities broke sharply on Berlin and New York selling, Canadian Pacific broke 4 points and others 1 under the New York closing of Monday. New York bought at the lower level and caused a recovery of ¾ to 1 point. The close was steadier.

GRAIN FUTURES SOAR IN THE LOCAL MARKET

Continued Drouth Boosts Corn for an Advance of 4c a Bushel.

Strength in the grain market continued throughout the day, and the closing figures on corn were at the top notch of the session. Reports of corn firing and drying up were received from Kansas and Nebraska, and considerable apprehension is felt for the crop in Missouri.

There was a slight reaction downward in wheat from the high point, caused by extensive profit taking. The trade in wheat was considerably less broad than in corn, and the heavy arrivals had a tendency to check the advance.

There was a near panic among the shorts at the opening in the local grain market Monday morning. Failure of rain to materialize over the three holidays was the bull card and prices of all cereals soared at a giddy pace.

Initial quotations showed an advance of about 2c in wheat, 4c in corn and 2c in oats. In the early trading there was a still further gain, with sentiment rampantly bullish.

Traders were on the scene earlier than usual, expecting fireworks, and when the gong sounded there was a wild scramble to execute orders. Wheat had an excited opening, July starting in a range from 86½c to 87¼c.

The excitement continued throughout the day, and business in futures here was the largest for any single day in months. Chicago reported a correspondingly enormous volume of trade, and Minneapolis and other great grain centers were in a state of foment equal to the larger markets.

Early stories of disaster from drouth in the West began to pour in, and these were plentifully exploited by the private wire houses with bull connections. Foreign news was also of a character calculated to assist the buying side.

Commission houses were supplied with enormous buying orders, and this pressure was augmented by unlimited covering of short lines, and the uncovering of numerous stop-loss orders on the short side. Many of these were filled from 2 to 3 cents away from the original placement, owing to the inability of traders to execute them in the excited state of the market.

Receipts at St. Louis over the three days were enormous, several times larger than those of the corresponding day a year ago, and primary arrivals were liberal, but this seemed to have no effect in checking the upward movement.

The Northwest furnished its quota of bull dope in the form of damage from excessive heat and drouth, and Minneapolis was strong and sharply higher throughout the day. Experts in the spring wheat region are reducing their estimates of yields and predicting total disaster in certain sections.

The Iowa State report was bullish, showing bad need of moisture and a heavy falling off in condition of all grains. In June the condition of corn lost 3 per cent; winter wheat, 12 per cent; spring wheat, 20 per cent; hay, 31 per cent, and other crops corresponding losses.

Liverpool opened 2d higher on pessimistic news from America and Russia. The world's shipments were larger than expected, and the on passage showed a much smaller loss than anticipated, but the weather in America and other grain producing countries offset any bearish statistics at hand.

Broomhall cabled that in the Southwest of the Volga district in Russia, it has been very hot, and considerable apprehension is felt for the crops. In many other sections conditions are drouthy and crops are way below the average for this season.

Receipts of wheat at St. Louis for four days were 463,000 bu, of which 18,205 sacks and 363 cars were local and 21 cars through, against only 89,800 bu for the corresponding period a year ago.

Local arrivals of corn totaled 297,600 bu, against 324,000 bu last year, and receipts of oats were 147,900 bu, against 119,000 bu last year. World's shipments were as follows:

	Wheat.	Corn.
This week	11,520,000	4,126,000
Last week	11,682,000	5,085,000
Last year	8,368,000	3,921,000
Two years ago	8,896,000	6,133,000

Wheat stocks at Minneapolis decreased 225,000 bu for four days this week, but receipts there were large, 575 cars, against 122 cars last year, and total Northwestern arrivals were heavy, 725 cars, against 352 last year.

Primary receipts of wheat were 1,954,824 bu, against 1,496,347 bu a year ago. Total shipments were 774,810 bu, against 691,212 last year.

Primary receipts of corn were 1,408,988 bu, against 1,813,382 bu last year. Shipments, 1,242,990 bu, against 1,518,414 bu last year.

North Dakota report—North Oak State report says: "The generally favorable conditions indicated in report of June 26 will have to be scaled down considerably on account of the persistent reports of hot winds and of dry weather received from many parts of the State. While good reports continue from parts, yet the less favorable news from elsewhere must be given consideration in summing up for the whole. Unfavorable conditions are confined for greater part to the southern half of the southern tier of counties, although scattered reports from further north seem to suggest a more spotted condition than is consistent with a record crop which was at one time indicated. Corn and flax seem to be holding their own, while hay, both wild and tame, is very abundant in most sections. The deterioration to date is manifested mostly in wheat, oats and barley.

European Visible.

The European visible shows a decrease of 7,952,000 bu, against a decrease of 7,710,000 bu a year ago; the total is now 81,072,000 bu, against 70,060,000 bu a year ago.

AUTO FIRE ENGINE PUTS OUT A RIOT; IS PATROL WAGON

University City Apparatus Also Used as Ambulance to Take Wounded to Doctor.

2 BLAZES ARE CHECKED

Coming Home the Motor Runs Over a Dog, and All on the Fourth of July.

Members of the University City Volunteer Fire Department unanimously voted Wednesday that it was a glorious Fourth. They had the time of their lives with their fine new automobile fire engine Tuesday night. They extinguished a free-for-all fight, acted as an emergency ambulance corps, exceeded the speed limit and, incidentally, put out two fires.

An alarm from Roth's Grove, 11 miles west of University City, on the Olive Street road, was turned in at 11:15 p. m. Fire Chief Kortkamp manned his trusty crew and grabbed the steering wheel.

On the way he picked up Marshal Willman and four deputies, who didn't know there was going to be urgent need for their services, but who volunteered to help the fire fighters in return for their breeze-stirring ride on the new engine.

Run Made in 14 Minutes.

Kortkamp made the run in 14 minutes. When he got to Roth's Grove he found it was a fight and not a fire that caused the alarm to be turned. Delivery wagon drivers were having a picnic. Some were bouncing beer bottles off others' heads and others were shooting holes in the safe and sane movement.

Willman and his deputies arrested 10 of the fighters and they were piled on the automobile fire engine to be taken to the University City Jail.

As they neared University City the firemen and marshals saw a man run into the road firing a revolver. They were about to arrest him when he explained that he was trying to attract attention to a fire in the Davis Wrecking Co. lumber yard.

The marshals alighted and took their prisoners to the University City jail, while the firemen sped to the lumber yard.

When they had put out the fire and were returning to the engine house they met one of the deputies who told them that one of the prisoners was shot and needed medical attention.

Fire Engine as Ambulance.

Over to the jail hurried the fire brigade in the automobile engine. Picking up the wounded prisoner they hit a fast clip to the office of Health Commissioner Thompson, six blocks away.

Stopping only long enough to learn that the man's supposed bullet wound was made by a beer bottle, they again started to the engine house.

Just as they were turning in to the engine house an alarm sounded for a fire at 6122 Delmar avenue. They turned around and sped right out again and put out the fire, which was in a vacant frame residence.

The ride home was uneventful except that the engine ran over a dog.

2 PASSENGERS HURT AS CARS COLLIDE

Merchant's Ribs Broken, Woman Bruised, in Crash at Loop.

Patrick P. Connor of 5745 Chamberlain avenue, member of the Merchants' Exchange commission firm of Connor Bros. & Co., was thrown from the step of a Hamilton car Tuesday night. Several of his ribs were broken, his hands were bruised and his scalp was cut. A Wellston car, bumping the Hamilton car, caused the accident. The platform of the front car was wrecked.

Miss Emma Hughes of 4456 Evans avenue, who was also on the step, was thrown to the ground and bruised.

The Hamilton car was standing at the loop, and most of the passengers were off, when the other car struck it. A few who were standing inside the front car were thrown to the floor. Neighborhood physicians treated the injured men and woman, and Connor was taken home in Dr. W. J. Langan's automobile.

Each coupon clipped from the Post-Dispatch and 10 cents entitles you to a box. The company takes this method of advertising its goods and is spending considerable money in its bid for patronage.

$3 BRIDGE WORK A TOOTH

ABOUT THE MOUTH AND TEETH
The mouth is the prime factor of beauty and the most expressive feature of the human countenance. The whole face loses its charm if the mouth exhibits a lot of decayed, unsightly teeth. You can keep your countenance beautiful if your teeth are properly cared for. "Tooth pullers" will destroy the beauty of the teeth, but a reliable dentist will improve your looks by saving your teeth instead of destroying them.
It would seem that everyone would want nothing but the best in dentistry, but many people will sacrifice lasting quality for low price and in the end the work is no good.
